LAUSCHE CALLS ASSEMBLY TO PASS NEW LAW

Special Session to Convene Monday; Governor Wants Measure Ready Aug. 1.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — A special session of the legislature to enact state rent controls was summoned by Governor Lausche today to meet next Monday night.

Next week's session will be the second special session of the general assembly summoned in less than a month by Lausche. The legislature convened June 24 and, in a single week's work, passed 18 of 26 measures asked by the governor in his call at that time.

Lausche issued the call following telephone conferences with legislative leaders.

"While I feel optimistic that the federal congress will pass a rent control law before Aug. 1," the governor stated, I do not feel that the state can wait any longer without proceeding with its own program, to be ready by Aug. 1 in the event the federal government does not act."

Has 10 Days.

Pointing out that the legislature would have ten days before the first of the month to work out a bill, the governor indicated he would let the solons work out their own measure.

"In my judgment, however," he added, "a state bill should be in effect only if the federal government does not act."

The formal proclamation calling the session was being prepared when Lausche told newsmen of his decision.

Mum On Veto.

The governor had no statement regarding a possible veto of any bill passed if congress should act between the time of passage of a state law and Aug. 1.

"That bridge will be crossed when and if I am compelled to come to it," the chief executive stated.

The governor said no attempt to outline a bill would be made in his proclamation, but that a message expressing his ideas would be sent to the legislature when it assembles Monday night.

Lausche said he was studying differences between various other state laws that have been enacted as well as "the differences of opinion" between landlords and tenants and a formula for establishing rent ceilings on properties placed in the rental market after the state law goes into effect.

The governor waved aside a question as to whether he was considering the request of the Ohio Real Estate association for a state law giving landlords a 15 per cent increase and effective only until next March. The Real Estate association also proposes that a state law be enacted only if federal rent control is re-instituted.

KILLER DIES

McFarland Goes to Electric Chair For Girl's Murder.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Earl McFarland, 25-year-old former marine private, died in the District of Columbia electric chair today for the brutal sex murder of a pretty government girl.

McFarland was pronounced dead at 10:13 a. m. EST.

The tall, tow-haired combat veteran went to his death with a smile. He was almost jaunty as he walked the "last mile" from death row to the execution chamber, and took his place in the chair where six German saboteurs were electrocuted three years ago.

Releases Bombers To U. S. Airlines

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The army prepared today to release some of its 200 four-motored Douglas transports to relieve an international civilian traffic jam caused by grounding of all Lockheed Constellation planes.

The action was taken as the Civil Aeronautics board announced that public hearings on last week's Trans-World Airlines Constellation crash will open July 29 in Reading, Pa., scene of the disaster which resulted in grounding the 50-passenger planes.

PREDICTS PRICE LEAP

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—Prices will jump higher than they have ever been in from two to three months. This prediction was made today by John E. Robinson, jr., district OPA director.

Merely a 'Trifling' Theft

ST. LOUIS—(INS)—The St. Louis prosecuting attorney's office disclosed today a most unusual request. A woman asked Assistant Prosecutor Myrt A. Rollins to issue a warrant charging another woman with larceny.

Rollins asked: "What did she steal?" The woman replied: "My husband!"

Rollins advised the woman to hire a lawyer and file suit for alienation of affections. Rollins added: "The law simply does not put any monetary value on a husband."

STABBED WITH PARING KNIFE, YOUTH DIES

OSR Inmate Slain By Attack in Supper Lines; Fellow Prisoner Held.

A sneak attack with a paring knife in a Mansfield reformatory supper line resulted in the death of Janvere Bruck, 18-year-old inmate, last night.

A fellow inmate, Howard Nichols, 20, was being held today in connection with the stabbing which occurred at 4:45 p. m.

Bruck died in the institution hospital at 8 p. m. His supposed assailant was being held at OSR pending the investigation of the case by Richland County Prosecutor Theodore Lutz.

Arthur L. Glattke, superintendent, said the knifing occurred when the cell range was opened for the supper lines and that Nichols, who was celled a short distance from Bruck, was alleged to have advanced through the lines to Bruck and stabbed him in the back and abdomen.

Dr. D. C. Lavender, Richland county Coroner, said that Bruck died of hemorrhaging due to stab wounds in the large vessels of the abdomen. The youth was removed to the institution hospital immediately after the knifing.

Glattke said that both youths had been transferred to the reformatory from the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster. He said that the weapon used was a small paring knife, with a

Gets Fewer Votes, But Wins Office

ATLANTA — (AP) — Red-galused Gene Talmadge of the unruly forelocks and the acid phrase is to be governor of Georgia again—a fourth time—but not by popular choice.

This paradox could come only out of Georgia. And it's the first time it has ever happened in a governor's race in Georgia, so far as anybody seems to know.

The simple—but complicated—fact is that Talmadge won a majority of county unit votes in Wednesday's Democratic primary, open for the first time to negroes who voted in large numbers.

The county unit system is intended to give political dominance to rural Georgia. Georgia has 159 counties, most of them small.

Generally, Carmichael with the backing of Arnall, got the big city vote as well as the negro vote, the latter estimated at about 100,000.

With returns complete in 151 of the state's 159 counties, Talmadge had 234 unit votes. Only 206 are needed for nomination. Carmichael had 134 unit votes and Ex-Gov. E. D. Rivers, who ran a poor third, had 18. Hoke O'Kelley, the fourth candidate, had none.

Carmichael's popular vote lead appeared to be about 10,000. With 1,599 of the state's 1,746 precincts reported, the count was: Carmichael, 307,126; Talmadge 296,751; Rivers 67,196; O'Kelley, 11,520

The vote was the largest in Georgia's history and the vote given Carmichael was the largest ever given any gubernatorial candidate.

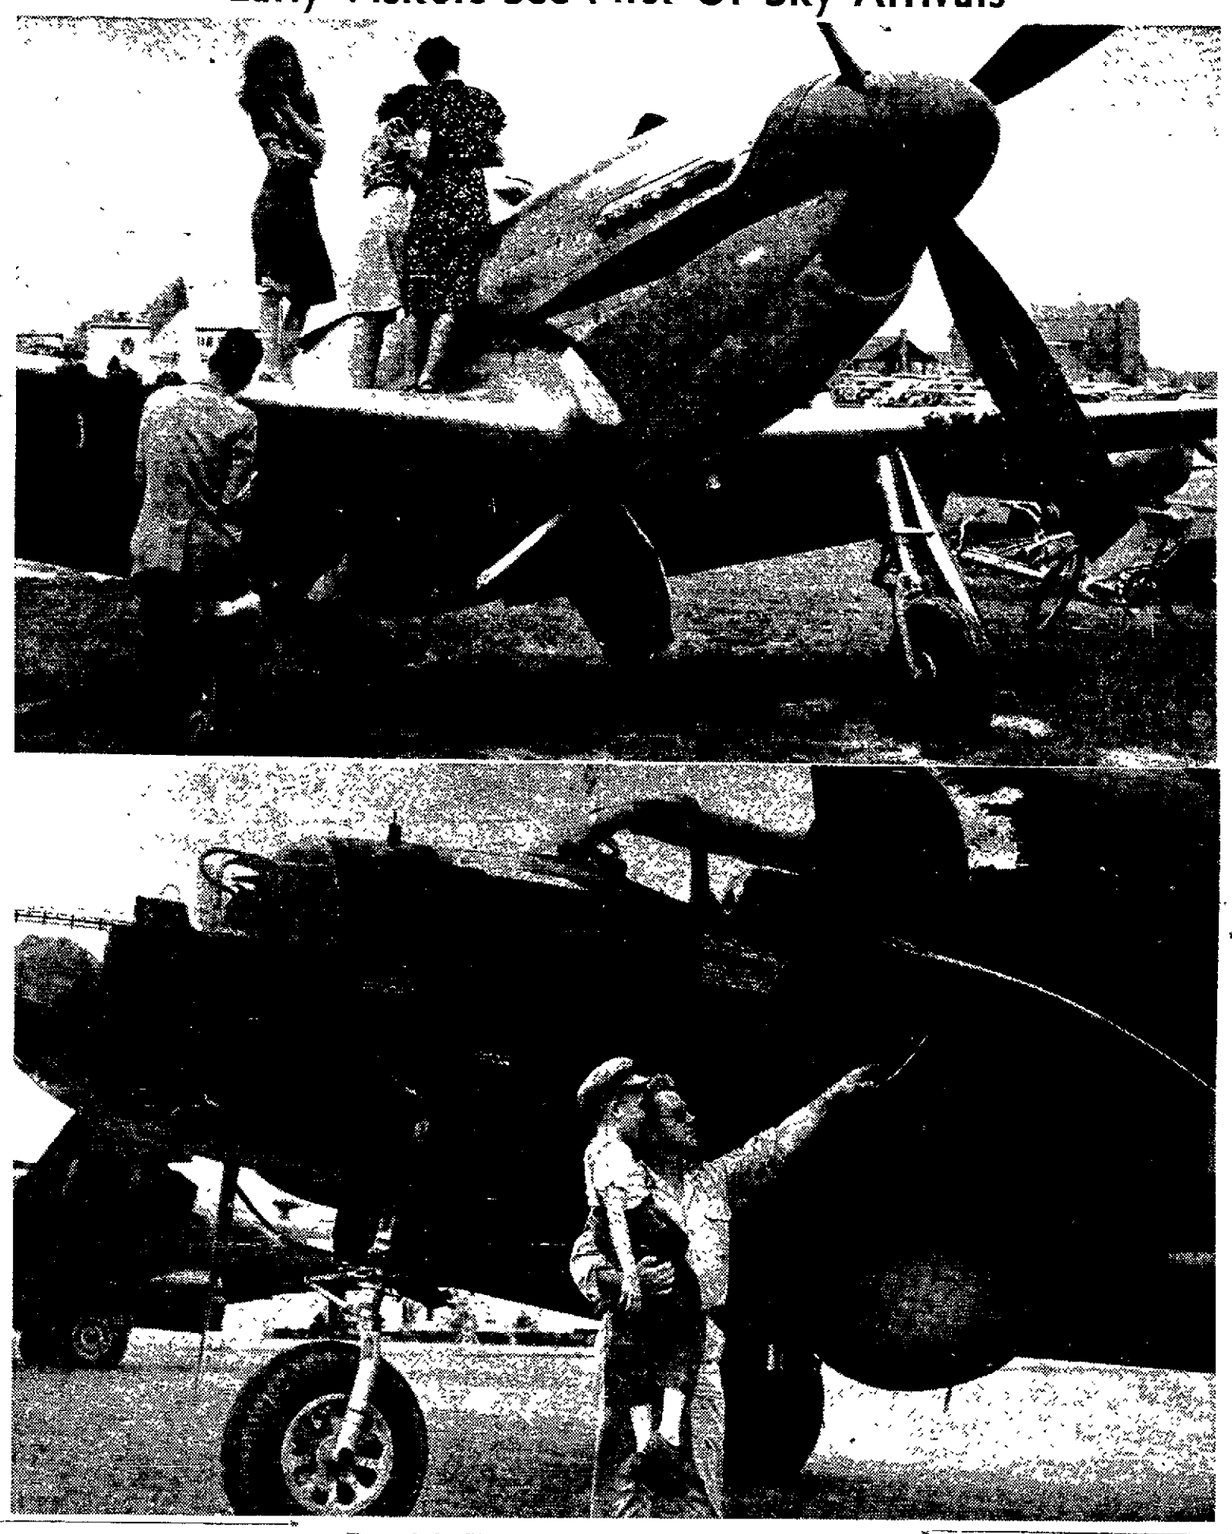
Baby Breaks Neck In Fall From Bed

MARION — (AP) — Nine-month-old Robert Henry Bishop fell out of bed in the Marion hotel last night and died of a broken neck.

He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Bishop of Dallas, Tex., who have been living at the hotel for the last six weeks. Bishop is employed by the Oklahoma Construction company, which is laying a petroleum pipeline from Columbus to Toledo, O.

Planes Begin Roaring In for Giant Sky Spectacle at Airport Tomorrow

Early Visitors See First Of Sky Arrivals



First of the 70 military aircraft to take part in Mansfield's airport dedication tomorrow and Sunday arrived at the new field late yesterday and early today. Shown here are some of the planes being examined by some early-bird spectators. In the top photo three women are inspecting the cockpit of one of the five army Mustang fighters to be shown and flown during the dedication. The Mustangs arrived from Texas early today. Inspecting the "hot" army fighter are, left to right, Mrs. Gerald Bush, 155 Buckingham street, and (backs to camera) Miss Betty Rizer, 243 Ruth avenue, and Miss Mary Jean Leedy, Bellville. In the lower photo, seven-year-old Tommy Crotty, of 288 Hedges street, gets a personally conducted "tour" of one of the three army Invader bombers which arrived here yesterday from Louisiana. Staff Sgt. M. W. Moore, of Collinsville, Ill., the attack bomber's crew chief, answers all of Tommy's "whats and whys."

OPA REVIVAL HITS LOW EBB

Senate-House Committee Not Able to Get Together on Food Exemptions.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — OPA revival prospects hit a new low in congress today as the CIO called for a national buyers' strike and for a new round of wage increases.

Chairman Spence (D., Ky.) of the house banking committee told newsmen "the prospects are dark for the restoration of effective price controls."

His comment came after senate members of the joint conference committee seeking an OPA compromise rejected a house proposal to revoke the senate bill's ban on any future ceilings for such essential market basket items as milk, meat, eggs and cheese.

The senators agreed to present a counter proposal today. But it was being drafted by a Republican-dominated subcommittee.

Also defeated by the conferees late yesterday was an attempt to revive the Taft industrial pricing amendment in modified form. The original pricing formula by Senator Taft (R., Ohio) bore the brunt of President Truman's ire in his veto of the original OPA extension bill.

Here Are Sidelights On City's Week-End Air Show

Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals, in charge of directing traffic at the dedication and sky show ceremonies said today that extra city buses will operate on a continuous circuit both Saturday and Sunday from the city to the airport. Fare will be 10 cents. No tokens will be honored.

* * *

Edward Sutter, chairman of the concession committee at the airport show, announced that one ton of wieners, coffee and cold drinks will be served from three concession stands at the port.

Two of the three crew members of the "State of Ohio," main airliner of the United Air Lines, which will arrive Sunday at the port, are former Mansfielders.

First Officer, Clifford J. Riedel, learned to fly under the Civilian Pilot Training program at the municipal airport from October, 1941, to May, 1942. Riedel also served as chief pilot for the Harrington Air Service, Inc.

Dwight E. Terrell, crew captain of the liner is a former employe of the Mansfield Vitreous Enameling plant.

The all-Ohio crew will also include Stewardess Margaret Ebert of Maple Heights.

Leo Seybold, former Mansfielder and now public relations officer of United Air Lines, arrived at the airport today and will appear during the ceremonies with the main liner and at the exhibit booth.

Vets' Families Eligible for Aid

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Atty. Gen. Hugh S. Jenkins today held that needy parents, widows and minor children of servicemen killed while on duty with the armed forces are eligible for relief under the Soldiers' Relief act of Ohio.

Jenkins said the fact that the relief is available only to honorably discharged veterans, does not mean that servicemen who were killed were excluded for benefits of the law.

Mustangs Buzz In From Texas

Workmen Put Finishing Touches On All Parts of City's $2,000,000 Port; Crowds Already On Hand.

By JOHN MINE

Mansfield's new airport looked like a joint army, navy marine corps air base today as the first of scores of military planes roared in for landings in preparation for the new field's dedication ceremonies tomorrow and Sunday.

Throughout the $2,000,000 port today the sounds of hammers, saws and graders mingled with the thunder of arriving aircraft as workers rushed the readying of the port for the two-day sky show.

Already hundreds of yards of guard fence have been set up to keep crowds back from the runways during aerial maneuvers. Rapidly taking shape are the numerous refreshment booths, toilet and drinking water facilities.

A steam roller was putting finishing touches on one of the 5,600 foot runways early today as other workers began setting up the speakers' stand for dedication ceremonies tomorrow afternoon.

Hundreds of early-bird port visitors looked on late this morning as four, sleek Mustang fighter planes from Texas army air base "buzzed" the field and then "peeled off" and swiftly landed.

Shortly before, three navy fighters and bombers from Port Columbus roared in to set down on the runways. Late yesterday, three black, twin-engined Invader bombers from Louisiana dipped low over the city marking the arrival of the first military planes.

Due to arrive today and tomorrow are scores of other military and commercial planes, including a flight of B-29 Superfortresses from New Mexico and 30 navy planes from a carrier off Rhode Island.

Also to arrive yet are the army's gigantic B-19 bomber, it's jet-propelled Shooting Star and numerous marine fighter planes. In all, 70 military craft are to take part in the show.

As the dedication's exhibit hall was being filled with military and commercial flying displays today, other workmen set to polishing the window's on the new field's control tower.

Still others were working on the special auto traffic control tower being set up at the entrance to the field and signs, marking the way to the port, were being tacked up throughout the Mansfield area.

Already completed is the mowing of acres of airport grass and today only minor grading work remained to be completed to give the 1,200 acre field that "spruced up for its debut" look.

Display Flags!

All Mansfield merchants today were urged to display American flags in front of their stores tomorrow to add to the festive appearance of the city. The request was made by W. L. Faulkner, chairman of the retailers' publicity committee for the airport dedication.

CROSS FINGERS OVER WEATHER

Air Show Committee Hopes Weatherman's Wrong as He Predicts Showers.

Airport dedication committeemen today were hoping the weatherman was wrong when he predicted "scattered showers and thunderstorms" for Saturday, initial day for the two-day dedication and sky show program.

"All events scheduled will be staged as nearly as possible on time regardless of the weather, but we're certainly hoping it doesn't rain or storm," a committee spokesman said.

While today was to remain cloudy and hot with thunderstorms this afternoon and tonight, tomorrow is to be cooler because of scattered showers which may fall in the Mansfield area, the weatherman said.

Sunday's forecast however contained no hint of rain and even promised moderate temperatures which could be welcomed by the estimated 50,000 spectators who are expected to witness the second day of the sky show.

General relief from temperatures that have ranged into the 90's in recent days was predicted for the week-end but the mercury will show readings three or four degrees above normal for the early part of next week when skies are to be clear, the forecaster said.

While the city area escaped rain today, southern Richland county reported heavy downpours early this morning. Maximum temperature yesterday was 90 degrees and the minimum this morning was 72. The mercury stood at the 82-degree mark at noon today.

BREAK UP RIOT

Koreans, Formosans Attack Tokyo's Black Market.

TOKYO—(INS)—American M.P.'s and cavalry troops riding in armored cars broke up a full-scale riot in Tokyo's Shibuya black market today.

The riot started when hundreds of Koreans and Formosans attacked Japanese guarding the market.

Brig. Gen. Charles S. Ferrin, provost marshal for Tokyo, did not disclose the number of wounded or dead in the riot, but six truckloads of rioters, wearing white headbands, were escorted to army headquarters by M.P.'s armed with tommy guns.

URGES HALT

Union Wants Meat on Taboo List Over Weekend.

(By Associated Press)

Officials of the CIO United Auto Workers today called for a complete halt to meat purchases over the week-end as they reported prices had already started "to crack under the strain" of the union's meat strike.

Walter P. Reuther, UAW-CIO president, said the campaign for a week-long embargo on meat purchases was progressing well, and added:

"Our goal is to reduce meat purchase to none at all on Friday and Saturday, the heavy weekend shopping days. The increasing momentum of the meat strike since it was called Tuesday indicate that this goal will be reached." Reports around the country indicated a definite slowdown in sales of meat and butter.

Churchill Unable To Nip Rationing

LONDON—(U.P.)—Bread rationing in Great Britain will begin Sunday under the handicaps of a threatened bakers revolt against it and widespread public resentment fostered mainly by doubt that it is necessary.

Winston Churchill, leader of the opposition, lost one of his lustiest skirmishes with the labor government on the rationing issue last night. His motion to kill rationing before it began was rejected by a commons vote of 305 to 182.

NEW YORK—Thanks to some young veterans, members of the American Veterans' Committee, Inc., I have a copy of the official bulletin, reporting on the recent first national convention in Des Moines. Two of the three were reluctant to let me have it, one of them remarking irrelevantly that they were not communists, although he, himself, might be called a pink. I then pointed out that theirs was not a secret society—or was it?—and that it should not be difficult to get a copy from the national headquarters just by asking.

I think this sensitiveness is due to the presence of communists in the organization and the raising of the issue of communism at a meeting of the metropolitan council of the AVC in New York, last May.

The bulletin contains five photographs of Charles Bolte, the national commander, four of Gilbert Harrison, the vice-chairman, three of Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., two of Henry Wallace and one of Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers of the CIO. In this repetition of the pictures of leading personalities in the dominant political faction of the AVC I observe a resemblance to the editorial character of union publications, notably the Pilot, of the National Maritime union, which often carries half a dozen cuts of Joe Curran, the president. The tendency here is to aggrandize the persons in power and promote their policies in an official publication technically devoted to the interests of the organization.

Mr. Wallace, now 58 years old, definitely did not serve in the second World war and his biography makes no mention of any service in the first one. Mr. Reuther, born in 1907, obviously could not have served in the first one and did not serve in the second one although he was just 35 at a time when many other American men of the same age dropped everything to join up.

Both Wallace and Reuther addressed the convention and their remarks, serving their own political interests, are reported to the extent of half a page. The head on the Reuther story reads, "'We're With You,' Reuther tells convention delegates." The text contains no reminder that Reuther certainly was not with them in camp or at the front during the war or that his union ran up a shocking record of strikes and slowdowns in automobile and airplane plants.

Anticipating the resentment of war veterans against this phase of the UAW's performance, Reuther, in April of this year, proposed a bonus of not more than $3,500 for veterans without overseas service and, for veterans, a minimum bonus of $500 and a maximum of $4,500.

He also proposed unemployment salaries for veterans who may be thrown out of work by union strikes and the Des Moines convention adopted this idea in its platform. That plans calls for $25 a week for 26 weeks "for unemployment of all kinds, including time lost due to labor disputes."

The bulletin is informative and this is true in a negative sense, as well, the case of Ken Pettus being an example.

Ken Pettus, formerly of Seattle, now of Chicago, where he is a news editor for the National Broadcasting company, and writes other radio material, is described as a veteran of 21 months' army service in the Pacific where he was "successively sports editor, feature editor and managing editor of the Tokyo edition of Stars and Stripes."

The Associated Press reported from Tokyo last March 3 that General Douglas MacArthur had approved the rmoval of Kenneth L. Pettus, of Chicago, from the post of magazine editor of Stars and Stripes on the ground of "questionable integrity and discretion." It occurs to me that this was pertinent matter which could be omitted from the bulletin's biographical story only at the risk of good faith between the bulletin and its readers. The AP said MacArthur's inspector general had said he found evidence that Pettus had "flavored" his writings with "communistic thought." Pettus denied that he ever had been a communist. The case caused a great stir.

The AVC frankly announces that it is trying to raise "one million dollars to get one million members." That would be one dollar a head and cheap, too. But there does seem to be a practical admission here that, given enough money and efficient propaganda and organization, a pressure group can round up the American veteran and herd him into any political coral.

CHANGCHUNG—(AP)—Weeks after its return to Chinese national sovereignty this Manchurian capital remains a city of military tenseness and barbed wire barricades.

Still, in view of the multiplicity of armies—Japanese, Russian, Chinese Communist and Nationalist—which have streamed through her modern, well-paved streets in recent months, the fact that it has returned to anything resembling normal is astonishing.

From the air, Changchung's broad avenues, modern buildings and wealth of parks serve notice that this is no ordinary Chinese city but a recent-day creation of the Japanese during 14 years of occupation. From the air, too, can be seen the effects of war—row upon row of former Japanese factories, now roofless shells of brick stripped even of floors and window sills.

Around the fringes of a large well-equipped airport, hulks of Russian Stormoviks and Japanese planes are mute monuments to Changchung's recent tenants.

No one may enter or leave Changchung through the barbed wire which bars the main highways without producing a pass. Vehicles bearing the American flag are an exception.

Inside the city, life appears to be approximately normal. Street cars are running, power and water systems are functioning, and freedom of movement is generally unrestricted except for miles of barbed wire which fence off many streets and army barracks. But parks are mostly overgrown with weeds and tall grass, roads are slowly falling into disrepair, and many beautiful homes are abandoned or suffering from lack of attention.

The capital of Japan's Manchukuo—the beginning of the greater East Asia co-prosperity empire—is badly in need of a general housecleaning. Many large, modern buildings, including the once impressive capital, have been gutted by fire or stripped and looted by succeeding armies.

The city population still includes some 250,000 Japanese technicians. That China will need many of these in rehabilitation and eventually in any new industries developed goes without saying. China at this moment is unable to fill the bill.

For the most part Japanese now are doing menial jobs helping to clear away debris, working in hotels or driving hundreds of droshkys which have replaced the rickshas in this un-Chinese city. Most of the Japanese are ill-clothed, unprepossessing and dressed in unkempt army uniforms. All are very polite.

CONGRESSMAN GETS SET TO DOWN TRUMAN

Missouri Democrat Accepts President's Challenge For Showdown.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—(U.P.)—President Truman and Rep. Roger Slaughter, congressman from the chief executive's home state, squared off today for a no-holds-barred fight "to determine the future course of the Democratic party."

Slaughter, in a radio address last night, accepted Mr. Truman's challenge to his reelection, and said he was willing to make the race in Kansas City's Fifth district "a test case so far as the country is concerned."

Slaughter, seeking his third term in congress, said:

"The president of the United States cast the issues today when he said, 'if Slaughter is right, I am wrong.' I accepted that challenge with all of its implications, including a fight to determine the future course of the Democratic party.

"To paraphrase the president, I submit that in this campaign I am right and the president is wrong."

Slaughter, who took to the air in response to Mr. Truman's endorsement of Enoz Axtell, an opponent of Slaughter in the Aug. 3 primary, said he had no bitterness against the president but felt he was a "victim of circumstances and a political prisoner of the CIO-PAC."

The PAC, he said, "takes its orders from the Communist party and now is seeking to take over control of the Democratic party."

"Make no mistake," Slaughter said. "The fight announced by the president today is a fight for control of congress and the rules committee, which controls the course of legislation in the United States."

The speech was in reply to Truman's statement at a press conference yesterday in which he charged that Slaughter, as a member of the house rules committee, had opposed every piece of administration legislation sent to the Hill.

SELECTS HEADS OF COMMITTEES

Shirley Snyder Chosen as Temporary Secretary of AVC Auxiliary.

Shirley Snyder was elected as temporary secretary of a newly-formed AVC Women's auxiliary during last night's meeting of Mansfield's American Veterans Committee in Memorial building, and seven new chairmen were named to committees.

Officers of the auxiliary formed last night will be elected at an AVC meeting to be held next week in Liberty park.

Chairmen selected to head the following committees include Charles Swain, veterans' affairs; Max Miller, membership; Charles Wheeler, local affairs; James McCartney, publicity; Charles Prosser, jr., social affairs; Jack Snyder, athletics; and Robert Nye, national and international affairs.

Plans for a fall bowling league were completed, and a "splash party" free to all ex-servicemen and families was scheduled for 7:30 p. m. Saturday at Liberty park pool.

Refreshments were served to group following a discussion of plans for participation in Labor Day celebrations.

PROBE BLAST

Gas Explosion Kills 9, Hurts 75, Wrecks 5 Buildings.

ONSET, Mass.—(INS)—Four investigations were underway today into the mysterious gas explosion which took nine lives, injured 75 and blasted five buildings. At least 25 of the injured are still in hospitals, a number of them in critical condition.

As state and local authorities dug through ruins to determine the cause of the worst disaster in the history of this summer resort, scores of persons were questioned by the district attorney, state fire marshall, the public utilities commission and local selectmen.

Onset still was a stunned village 24 hours after the blast. Hardly any of scores of witnesses told the same story. No two of the injured seemed to have had the same experience.

BREAKS UP GROUPS

VIENNA—(INS)—The official Hungarian news agency reported today that the Budapest government has suspended 277 organizations, including several Catholic youth groups. Dissolution of these organizations has been demanded by the Soviet Union. The Russians charged that they concealed Fascist elements.

SECOND BABY ABANDONED

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The second baby girl abandoned in Cleveland within 24 hours was found last night at the rear of a West Side store. Police found the newly born girl wrapped in a white tablecloth and a red, white and blue cloth feed bag after an unidentified man called a district station and reported the abandonment.

Four Shirts a Minute Sold In Five Hour Rush In City

Twelve hundred shirts were sold at the rate of four shirts a minute in a five hour rush yesterday at the Fashion Lane, 24-26 North Diamond street!

More than 600 shirt-hungry Mansfield men began snatching up the scarce items at 9 a. m. when the doors opened. By 2 p. m. the last shirt on the shelves had been bought.

Martin Lewis, owner of the store, said that between 400 and 500 persons were waiting in line when the doors opened.

"We had to use a relay system of allowing only 50 in the store at one time in order to handle the crowd," he said.

With 500 white shirts among the lot, the customers were limited to one white shirt and one either plain or stripped shirt. Lewis said that the 1,200 shirts was the first large shipment he has received in two years.

Mrs. J. B. Scott Dies At Age 72

Mrs. J. B. Scott, 72, 235 West Fifth street, a former resident of Lexington, died at Mansfield Sanitarium hospital Friday morning. She was born in Morrow county in 1873.

She is survived by her husband, at home; one son, James E., 60 Chilton avenue; two daughters, Mrs. R. H. McCracken, 187 Euclid avenue; and Ethel, Gallipolis; one brother, James Stull, Steam Corners; one sister, Mrs. Ella Gillitond, of California; and four grandchildren.

Rev. Charles F. Sheriff, pastor of St. Matthew's church, will conduct funeral services at the Snyder funeral home, Lexington Monday at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Iberia cemetery.

VETERANS OF 2 TOWNS ORGANIZE

Bellville-Butler Group Forms New Amvet Post; Mishey Named Commander.

With the assistance of a group of Mansfield Amvets (American Veterans of World War II), 16 Bellville and Butler veterans last night formed the Bellville-Butler Amvet post, following a dinner meeting at Dill's restaurant in Bellville.

During the organization meeting a complete slate of officers was elected to head the new Amvet post for the coming year.

Charles Mishey, a former Chemical Warfare Service corporal with a record of 33 months service of which 22 were spent in the European Theater of Operations, was chosen post commander and William Robinson was elected vice commander.

Other officers elected were: Richard Spayde, finance officer; Fred Newlon, adjutant; Earl Leedy, judge advocate; Clifford Livingston, provost marshal; and Richard Garber, service officer.

Organization of the post followed talks by Jack Gruno, executive secretary, state department of Amvets; and Elden Becker, acting commander of Mansfield Post No. 26. Al Myers, Charles Boughton and Robert E. Rogers of the Mansfield post assisted in organizing the Bellville-Butler post.

2,000 STILL TO MEET DEADLINE

$135,000 Outstanding in Unpaid Real Estate Tax; Day to Go.

Some 2,000 Richland county taxpayers have only one more day in which to pay nearly $135,000 in last half 1945 real estate taxes without penalties, County Treasurer C. C. Payne said today.

With the deadline at 4 p. m. tomorrow only $577,854 has been paid on the total charge of $762,741. Payne reported. The treasurer's office in the courthouse will remain open until 4 p. m. instead of closing at noon as is usual on Saturday.

Yesterday's collections totaled only $19,461, a slump from the $30,000 to $40,000 collections of the past week or more, Payne said. The treasurer said that some $50,000 of the total amount collected lies in unlabulated mail receipts.

DIES AT HOME

Mrs. Fred Miller Succumbs, Rites to Be Monday.

Mrs. Louise Miller, 42, wife of Fred Miller, died unexpectedly this morning at her home, 315 Third avenue. A native of Yugoslavia, she came to Mansfield in 1914. She was a member of St. John's Evangelical church.

Surviving besides her husband are the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Moritz; one brother, Steve; and four sisters, Mrs. Thomas Bayder, Mrs. Emily Kmetz, Mrs. Joseph Sheets, and Miss Elaine Moritz, all of Mansfield. One son, Fred, jr., died last February following an automobile accident.

The body is at the Wappner funeral home where services will be held Monday at 3:30 p. m. with Rev. Paul Saleste in charge. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

2 Men, 2 Tomatoes Cause Major Strike

LONDON—(INS)—Two men, two tomatoes and a bite out of each resulted ultimately today in a strike of 2,000 workers and a threat to London's weekend food and freight supplies.

The entire handling staff of the Bishop's Gate Freight station, the capital's main freight distribution center, quit work this morning after railroad police arrested the two men for eating the tomatoes. The strikers sent an ultimatum to the company that they would stay out until this "paltry matter" is settled to their satisfaction.

Given Sentence For Non-Support

Juvenile Judge S. H. Cramer yesterday sentenced Loy Brown 33, of Shelby, to 60 days in the county jail unless he pays $250 in unpaid support payments for two of his children by a former wife.

Still pending is a similar charge of non-support against Mrs. Alvesta Lewis, Ashland, who was given 10 days in which to make payments of $96 for the support of her two children.

MISSOURI REVISITED—

"It looked like George had been a bad boy." So said Mrs. George Davis when she saw a notation that her husband had been expelled from the Mark Twain Temperance league some 50 years ago.

"Members of the Mark Twain league were listed on a tablet of old writing paper. However, the name George Davis was put back on the list midway on the sheet," she added.

All this happened when Mr. and Mrs. Davis visited the Mark Twain museum in Hannibal, Missouri recently. Davis, a native of Hannibal, left Missouri 50 years ago and he had quite a time reliving childhood memories on the vacation trip which ended yesterday.

The Twain museum is in Davis' grandfather's homestead.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Davis enjoyed eating catfish, a true Missouri delicacy.

AN HONEST MAN—

One discharged sailor is mighty thankful that there are still honest people in the world. While stopping over at the local bus station, he left his billfold containing all of his discharge pay, and didn't discover the loss until he had reached Mt. Vernon. A call to Mansfield police station sent police to the bus station where the billfold with everything untouched had already been turned in to the desk clerk by a Chicago man. The ex-sailor returned to Mansfield later in the day and claimed the billfold.

State highway patrolmen investigating the accident said that Baker and a companion were riding about two miles north of Mansfield on U. S. Route 42 when the accident occurred.

SOCIETY 'OUT TO SELL' 300 MEMBERSHIPS

Board Strives to Inject New Vigor Into Decadent Annual Event.

A campaign to expand the membership of the Richland County Agricultural society, parent organization of the county fair board, by as many as 300 persons was announced today by C. S. Henry, president of the society.

The decision to get "new blood" into the organization came after months of agitation over the county fair and its grounds.

Even members of the board criticized themselves, many wondering if the entire board shouldn't resign in a body in an effort to bring the situation to a head. Dissatisfaction among the board's own members was typified by one member's recent appelation of "eyesore" to the fairgrounds.

"We decided we need new blood on the board. We hope we can stimulate enough interest throughout the county to get at least 100 members who will see that we expand our fair and make the entire program one of credit to the county," Henry stated.

Membership in the society is obtained by buying tickets, at $1 each. The ticket entitles the membership to a vote in the annual meeting of the fair board and to free admission to the fairs. Three hundred tickets have been printed.

"Many people feel that the present board has lain down on the job. That is partly so because the members felt that people just aren't interested. Now that the war is over and we've got this membership campaign going, we'll see if the people really want a good program," Henry said.

Meeting Delayed.

Orville Kibler, secretary of the board, reported that 35 or 40 tickets have been sold and that others are available from himself or Henry and Clarence Tugend, other board members.

A meeting of the fair board had been scheduled for Saturday when details of this year's Junior Fair would be ironed out.

"But the printers notified us they could not turn out the premium list by then so the meeting has been postponed tentatively until June 27. It will be held in the probate courtroom in the courthouse at 8 p. m.," Kibler said.

"The board seems to feel that it had better give up the annual fair as a bad job unless enough people want to give enough time, money and effort to make it succeed. It hopes to enlist the cooperation and support of all farmers, merchants and livestock breeders," Kibler said.

Previously the board had appointed three of its members, Arthur Millick, Charles Oberlin and Clair Will, as a committee to study the problem of improving the fairground, a fairly expensive job because of its present run-down condition. Included in that problem is whether or not the grounds should be sold and a new, larger and more advantageously located site obtained.

Kibler said the membership campaign would be conducted probably until after this year's fair, scheduled for Aug. 23 and 24, is over. The annual meeting of the society will be held late in November and on the last Saturday in December the society will elect the fair board members and officers.

Present members of the board and the townships they represent are: Henry, Weller; Kibler, Madison; Millick, Bloominggrove; Oberlin, Butler; Will, Sharon; George Page, Shiloh; Harry Miller, Washington; E. C. Shafer, Springfield; Henry Hulit, Mifflin; Albert Strater, Madison; Herman H. Wolf, Franklin; Floyd Mowry, Perry; Arch Weiser, Plymouth; Clarence Tugend, Madison; John Kochheiser, Perry; Walter Shafer, Troy; and L. L. Rinehart, Sandusky.

Prepare to Help Merchants Beat Deadline on Sales Tax

A schedule to assist Richland county merchants in meeting the July 31 deadline for the semi-annual sales tax reports was announced today by sales tax examiners.

The sales tax office in the courthouse will be open from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. each day from July 24 to July 31 except Saturday July 27, when it will be closed at noon.

An examiner will be in Lucas during the afternoon of July 24, in Shelby from 9 a. m. to noon and in Plymouth from 1 p. m. to 3 p. m. on July 26. On July 29 the examiner will be at George Armstrong's office in Shelby all day, and on July 30 he will be in Bellville from 9 a. m. until noon.

Vendors should bring a copy of their last report and a record of stamp purchases for the period from Jan. 1, to June 30, 1946 when they call to file their semi-annual report.

Penalty will be imposed on those filing late.

Four and possibly five Mansfield softball teams are expected to enter the district softball tournament at Marion.

Bob Smith, a former Mansfielder, had to sink a lot of money into lights this year to give Marion a lighted softball park.

Sponsor of Smitty's Grill men's and girls' teams, Smith got started in the sport as a backer only three years ago. His first team won the district title.

This spring Smith decided he would try and build his own plant. He was able to lease the ball field at Crystal Lake park in Marion.

After spending a lot of money having the field scraped and fixed up, he also had solid stands constructed down both first and third base lines.

He will put up additional stands for the men's tourney which will be held Aug. 5-9.

Cardinals Take Over National Loop Lead

Red Birds Apparently Set For Another Stretch Drive; Braves Halt Cubs.

By JACK HAND, AP Sports Writer.

Brooklyn's fond dream of a 1946 pennant has exploded into a grisly nightmare today with the Cardinals back in first place and the Dodgers on a six-game losing binge.

Seven games ahead on the July 4th dividing line, the Dodgers have crashed toward their doom on a fatal western jaunt while St. Louis, safe at home, has eaten up the entire lead and forged ahead by a half game.

All is not lost for the Gowanus faithful if the Brooks can pull out of the tailspin before it becomes a habit for the Red Birds still have two long eastern tours before the curtain drops.

The discouraging factor to the Brooks is the certain fact that St. Louis appears to be leveling off for another of its famous stretch drives.

The Phillies, who kept St. Louis out of first place Wednesday, fought hard to bar the door last night but finally succumbed, 5-4. It was the first time the Cards had undisputed possession of the lead since May 21.

Shoddy defensive play and inability to bunch hits off Bucky Walters sent the Dodgers down for the sixth time, 4-2, in Cincinnati. . . . Kirby Higbe was charged with his third setback when the Reds broke out with three runs in the third. The Brooks have won only one game in nine western starts.

Bill Lee halted the Chicago Cubs' upward march with a six-hit, 9-3 decision for the Boston Braves who shelled five hurlers, including loser Claude Passeau for 13 safeties. The result left the Bruins four games off the pace.

Pittsburgh broke Dave Koslo's jinx, downing New York, 7-3 after the rookie southpaw had beaten them four straight times.

The Boston Red Sox maintained their 11-game lead over New York by nosing out Chicago, 3-2 on Tom McBride's third hit and second double.

Joe Gordon's two-run homer in the fourth inning was enough help for Mel Queen in recording his first triumph since his discharge from the army. Queen, a loose-jointed righthander with a blazing fast ball, scattered eight St. Louis hits in his 3-1 success.

Gil Coan's speed enabled Washington to trim Detroit, 1-0, in a night game as the rookie outfielder flashed around the bases for an inside-the-park home run in the eighth inning off Dizzy Trout.

Keeps Lead In Junior Loop

Prospect Jrs. demonstrated that they definitely belong in first place in the Junior softball loop at the moment with a 23-6 win over the North End Wildcats at Liberty.

Longsdorf hurled a five-hitter as his Ringside Juniors won from Sandy Hill, 7-1, at Johns.

Starting off with six runs in the opening frame, Lincoln Heights went on to win from the Jr. Optimist, 8-4. Walker, Lincoln hurler, allowed only two hits.

Klein, Hardware Clubs Lose To Smitty's Grill Teams

MARION—Two Mansfield teams participated in the official opening ball of the newly lighted Smitty's park softball field here last night—and they "helped" make the evening a success.

Smitty's Grill defeated the Klein Furs, 10-8, and the Smitty's girls turned back Mansfield Hardware, 8-6.

Stub Winebrenner and Larry Madden shared the Klein pitching and gave up a total of 12 hits.

Campbell led the Klein's eight-hit attack with a home run and triple.

The Hardware nine waited too long before getting down to work at the plate. Behind 8-2 going into the seventh inning, the visitors slammed out five hits good for four runs.

Marty Shaffer hurled for the losers and allowed but seven hits.

Pitcher Betty Mochel slapped out a four-bagger with the bases loaded to climax the Marion club's five runs in the second inning.

Dayton Fighter's Left Causes Paul Trouble

Second Straight Win For Lewis Over Local Scrapper; Alexander Wins.

By HAL CLAWSON

Paul Carbetta is still after his first win over Dick "Teddy" Lewis of Dayton.

In one of the best pro fights seen here in years, 1200 fight fans saw the local ring star lose a 10-round decision to Lewis in the main go on the outdoor show at the Armory last night.

After the first three rounds, Carbetta took a pretty good going over from the left hand of Lewis and was shaken on several occasions by short rights.

Local fans saw Paul down for the nine-count in the sixth, ninth and tenth rounds. But every time he came back to get in some telling punches.

Giving away five pounds to Lewis, Carbetta left himself open at times and the fast moving Lewis kept coming in and taking advantage of those openings.

It was a repeat performance of their first meeting three years ago in Chicago when Carbetta lost a six-round decision to Lewis.

According to the News-Journal round-by-round score card, Carbetta took the first three rounds, with Lewis taking the other seven.

Knockdowns hurt Paul for he generally got off the canvas to land some good punches.

Lewis, trying for a knockout, sent Carbetta down under a furious barrage of lefts and rights in the tenth round.

After taking several stiff lefts to the head in the fourth round, Paul tired badly in the fifth but because of keeping in good shape was able to go the distance.

Mansfield's Dick Alexander turned in a well-earned win over Harry Woods of Columbus. The local lad entered the ring at 144 while Woods tipped the scales at 153.

Because of his shorter reach, Alexander had to keep watching for openings and then move in for some short punches.

Alexander took the first round after connecting with two lefts that had a telling effect. Woods scored with a couple rights at the start of the third.

The fourth and fifth rounds saw less action while Alexander had Woods hanging on in the fifth. Both were out for a knockout in the sixth.

Alexander displayed a lot of smart ring action against Woods and he also showed that he could shake off some pretty hard blows.

Phil Scott, 150, of Marion scored a TKO over Don Ferio, 155, of Columbus when the latter couldn't continue following the second round because of a broken nose.

Billy Banks, 140, Columbus, lost a four-round decision to Tommy Welch, 135, Delaware. This was a fast moving bout all the way with Welch's action in the fourth round giving him the nod.

In the opener, George Kerestes of Mansfield scored a TKO over Jack Louden, 165, of Columbus. This was a wild scrap with Kerestes missing plenty of haymakers.

Bill Harry and "Honey Boy" Jones did a fine job of handling the bouts.

DEPOT TRIMS CIO NINE AT SHELBY

SHELBY — The Eagles and Laubie's are tied for the lead in the Shelby softball league's second half season with two consecutive wins apiece.

The Parsel AAF depot defeated the CIO-Steelworkers' Union, 10 to 7, Thursday night on the waterworks diamond. No game is scheduled for tonight.

COMMISSION RULES

The protested July 8 Park league softball game between North Lake and Liberty has resulted in a forfeit win for the North Lake club, the softball commission has ruled. It is covered by Rule 6, Sections 2 and 3.

Legion Nine In District Play

Ross Frisbee is the probable hurler for the Mansfield American Legion junior baseball team when the local nine faces Fremont in the opening game of the district tournament at Norwalk tomorrow morning starting at 9:30.

Wadsworth and Elyria play immediately following the Mansfield-Fremont tilt.

A double elimination tourney, all four teams will come back Saturday afternoon for two more games.

Sunday's play will determine the winner.

Umpires from Cleveland have been acquired to handle the tourney according to Dewey Durant, chairman of the Fifth district junior Legion baseball activities.

A NEW EXPERIENCE

'Tis through experience we learn
And thus through knowledge wisdom earn.
—Reddy Fox.

Reddy knows. It is not for nothing that he is held to be in some respects the smartest of all the Green Meadow and Green Forest folk. No one knows more about his neighbors for a long distance around than does Reddy, and no one could make better use of such knowledge than does he.

"How do you know so much?" asked his admiring and eager young son, who was just starting out to make a place for himself in the Great World.

"Through listening to my elders when I was young and heeding their advice, but more, much more, through experience. To a Fox willing to learn, my son, experience is the greatest of all teachers. You were badly fooled by Mrs. Grouse and led away from her hidden babies. That was experience. You never will forget it and you never will be fooled again by that trick. But had you simply been told about it you very likely would forget it," explained Reddy.

He turned tail and ran.

The young Fox, as became his father's son, was smart enough to see that it was the truth his father spoke. He never would forget that trick by Mrs. Grouse and he never would be fooled by it again. He didn't say so to Reddy but to himself he declared that he would get even with Mrs. Grouse. He would look for those babies of hers until he found them and then—then he would find out just how good eating they were. He licked his lips at the thought.

So the very next day he was back in the Green Forest looking for Mrs. Grouse and her babies. He went straight to the place where he had first seen her. She wasn't there. Nor was she anywhere in the neighborhood. Because as yet he knew nothing of Mrs. Grouse and her way of life he had no idea in what other part of the Green Forest she was likely to be.

So the young Fox just wandered about. He had his eyes open for Mrs. Grouse and also had his eyes open for some sign the big black fellow who had given him such a fright the last time he had visited the Green Forest. Of course it was Buster Bear. The young Fox couldn't rid himself of the fear that he might blunder into that fellow. It wasn't a happy thought.

So his attention was divided and divided attention never sees all that can be seen and perhaps shouldn't be seen. So he missed a sudden scattering of tiny brown chicks, nor did he see Mrs. Grouse at one side of the Crooked Little Path, her own brown coat blending with the brown leaves on the ground. He had no idea that she was near until blinded by stout wings beating across his face. Sharp claws scratched it, and a strong bill pounded him about the head. The unexpectedness of the attack made it frightening and confusing. He didn't understand at all what was happening.

He tried to back away. He couldn't. This fighting fury went right along with him, pounding, scratching, pecking. It was more than he could stand. He turned tail and ran. After him, half flying, ran Mrs. Grouse. It wasn't until she gave up and he had a chance to turn around to look that he knew who had given him such a beating. Perhaps you can guess how he felt when he saw that it was Mrs. Grouse.

For a moment he stared unbelievingly, blinking and shaking his head. Then angrily he started back toward her. He would show her that she couldn't treat him this way. Mrs. Grouse didn't wait for him. No, sir, she didn't wait for him. The instant he started she started too, not away from him but straight at him. Because she was using both wings and feet she was at full speed almost on the instant. Her ruff was out. All her feathers were standing up. She looked twice as big as she really was. The young Fox had no time to think how to meet the attack when she was in his face again, battering him, clawing him, pecking him. Unable to see, wholly confused, he snapped at her in vain. Once more he turned and ran.

This time he didn't return. Enough is enough. He had had enough. It was a new experience, a most unpleasant one. Not until he was back in the Old Pasture did he understand what that attack had meant. He grinned sheepishly. He was grinning at himself. It is a wise Fox who can grin at himself. "Those young ones were somewhere around there," he muttered.

Bill Mauldin's Cartoon

"Red, pink, left of center, colorless, careful, conservative or reactionary?"

Barclay on Bridge

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

In no trump play, the principal purpose of the hold-up play by the declarer is to make sure that the dangerous defenders' side entries are out of his hand before he gets his long suit set up. If you let his partner knock out your own stoppers in the dangerous suit, whenever he has the lead, you make the defense just that much easier. But by holding up one of your stoppers, you try to make the partner switch lead before you are wide open in the threatening spot.

South was after bigger game than a mere set of his not-vulnerable opponents' 1-Spade, so refused to pass North's double. He wound up in the most profitable spot, with a No Trump game, then kicked it away in the play.

Despite South's bid, West, with pretty fair re-entries, opened a spade, his 4. South reckoned he had that suit so well stopped, that he went right in with his A over the J. He led the club 10, which the Q covered and the A took then the heart 3 to the 10 and A. The spade 3 came back and, when East played the Q, South promptly put on the K. He got three heart tricks then, and suddenly realized he would have to lose the lead to West's almost surely marked club K, whereupon West could spade him to defeat. South therefore took in his two diamond tops and led the club 6. Sure enough, West had the K and followed with three spade tricks, setting him.

What a cinch that contract was if South had held up on the second spade lead, East would have had to switch to something else. Then, when West got the lead with the club K, he would find South still had the spades stopped. By means of that simple hold-up, South would have scored all the tricks except that plus one heart and one club.

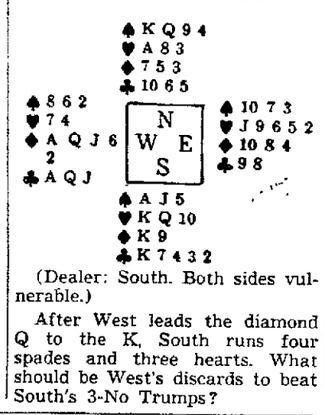
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

After West leads the diamond Q to the K, South runs four spades and three hearts. What should be West's discards to beat South's 3-No Trumps?

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Nelson Finds Things Rough

CHICAGO — (AP) — Defending Champion Byron Nelson appeared heading for a trimming in the $10,000 Chicago Victory National Open which started today with 55 select professionals and 17 amateurs.

Nelson, who heeded overnight coaxing by his cronies to stay in the field for the 72-hole scramble, was just another golfer in a 36-hole carnival for pro-amateur, pro-lady and pro-senior titles which ended yesterday.

Apparently getting Nelson's goat, the 6,929-yard, par 71 course threw Byron for a feeble 74-75—149, seven over standard for the two-day preliminary skirmishing in which Johnny Bulla stole the professional show.

Bulla, although he failed to cop in any of the three combination championships, waded through the 36-hole preliminaries in 137, five under par, to emerge as the top professional.

Fifth Running of Victory Plate

AKRON—The fifth running of the Ascot Victory Plate, at the distance of one and one-half miles, will highlight Saturday's program of running races at Ascot park.

A limit field of 10 is expected to measure strides in the Victory Plate and among the entries is likely to be Amalka, from the Lowe and Pemberton string. Amalka scored impressively in the Ascot Handicap last Saturday. Others seeking the major portion of the $2500 purse probably will include Mrs. H. D. Walker's Pearl Harbor, John, from the Joe Blackwell barn, and Sashay Moon, owned by H. D. Peters.

Post time Saturday will be 2:30 p. m. (EST). On all days of the meeting except Saturdays, there's twilight racing with the sport beginning at 4 p. m.

Fights Last Night

BRISTOL, Conn.—Tony Falco, 146, Middletown, outpointed Floyd "Bat" Stroud, 145, Tampa, 8.

BROOKLYN—(Ford Hamilton)—Vinnie Rossano, 147½, Brooklyn, T. K. O. Jimmy McDonough, 146½, Brooklyn, 4.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass.—Tommy Bell, 148, Youngstown, knocked out Willard Buckless, 152, Saugus, 2.

PITTSBURGH — Eve Sarlin, 382, Pittsburgh, T. K. O. Charley Roth, 188, Akron, 6.

EARLY INCENTIVE

PITTSBURG —(CP)— The inventive genius of George Westinghouse made its practical debut because 14-year-old George wanted to attend a Saturday picnic. His plans were endangered by a strict order from his father to cut a large pile of pipes into equal lengths. So George, who was born a century ago this year, devised an automatic pipe-cutting machine.

Becker Stars For Indians

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— President Bill Veeck of the Cleveland Indians apparently knows how to pick ball players.

One of Veeck's first moves after taking over the Indians was to obtain First Baseman Heinz Becker from Nashville of the Southern association.

Berlin-born Becker was swatting .381 at Nashville and since joining the Tribe at Boston Tuesday has rapped five hits in nine trips to the plate, including three doubles, for a .556 average.

The new Cleveland acquisition continued his string of getting at least one hit in every game by smacking a run-scoring double yesterday as the Indians subdued the Philadelphia Athletics 7 to 3 for their third straight triumph.

Another new Tribesman, Les Webber, former Brooklyn Dodger, received credit for the victory. Webber tired after five innings and was relieved by Steve Gromek, who temporarily has been assigned to bullpen work. Together they set the A's down with eight hits.

The Indians tallied six of their eight runs in the second as nine batters strode to the plate. The big blow was a triple by George Case which cleaned the loaded bases. Case now has hit safely in eight consecutive games.

Hank Edwards, well up in the American league batting chase, stroked a triple and a single in three trips.

Mel Harder, dean of the Indians' mound corps, will make his first appearance in nearly two weeks when the clubs close their series tonight. Bob Savage is expected to work for the Athletics.

STOCKS DRIFT DOWNWARD AS RALLY FADES

Price Control Uncertainties Again Get Blame For Slow Selling.

NEW YORK —(AP)— A general downward drift characterized today's stock market proceedings.

Feeble recovery efforts at the opening failed to attract adherents.

Apathetic selling again was blamed partly on price control uncertainties, consumer resistance to rising costs, lagging production and threats of renewed labor difficulties. A number of good dividends failed to prop some stocks concerned but aided others.

Prominent on the retreat were U. S. Steel, Republic Steel, Goodyear, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Western Union "A," American Can, Allied Chemical, Southern Pacific, Hiram Walker and Life Savers (despite a boosted quarterly payment.)

Occasional gainers included Chesapeake & Ohio and Woolworth. Equitable Office Building slipped in the wake of a court ruling sustaining the original reorganization program. May Department stores did better on a raised dividend.

HUGHES STILL GAINING

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—Howard Hughes was reported making continued progress today toward recovery from critical injuries suffered July 7 when an experimental army photo reconnaissance plane he was test-flying crashed into three Beverly Hills homes.

EXPAND SURPLUS SALES

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Government surplus property may now be bought by veterans organizations, churches, religious institutions and certain other non-profit organizations at the same price offered small retailers, Rowland D. Schell, regional director of the War Assets administration, announced today.

Tiny Tots and Dogs Are Chronic Problems Of Ushers, Declare Aisle-Walking Vets

Children Get Lost But the Dogs Refuse to!

That fellow who shows you to your seat in the theater has no dull job.

Everything from ushering canine companions of small patrons through the front door to finding a two-year-old's mama is all in the daily lives of Madison theater ushers, John Prather, Loren Buzzard and Edward Parry.

"You see some funny things happen, all right," smiled Prather. The 17-year-old is already a two-year veteran of theater work, having worked as usher and doorman.

Buzzard, also 17, is a runner-up to Prather in length of service with one year and seven months employment to his credit. Parry, a native of Phoenix, Ariz., started his ushering career a week ago after moving to the city.

"Every kiddies' matinee some youngster gets lost," Buzzard said. "We find them standing out in the lobby crying, so we take them up and down the aisles until they find their mother or father. They're usually from two to five years old."

Putting dogs out of the movie house has become almost a routine job.

"Some of the dogs just lie down and wait until the children come out of the show—they're the veterans. But lots of them want to come in with the children and we have to chase them out." Buzzard interrupted his interview by demonstrating his eviction of a pug-nosed bull terrier.

Sometimes the usher's assistance seems in vain.

"You start down the aisle to find a seat for some people; (Buzzard admitted that in this case, the people are mostly women) you find some seats; turn around and they're not there. They saw some seats they liked better and moved in."

But not all incidents bring chuckles from the good-humored ushers. There are a few that bring headaches in large doses.

"The noisiest people we get in here are the teen-agers between 13 and 18," the teen-aged Buzzard continued. "They sneak in the balconies when you've got them closed off and make a lot of noise. If you speak to them about it, they quiet down for about five minutes and start in again because they know they've attracted attention."

The system of sneaking in the show fascinated the young Arizonian.

"Some fellow will come in here and say he wants to find his mother," Parry began. "He'll go into the show, open the exit door so his buddies can get in, then come back through the lobby and say he couldn't find her. Once he gets out, he goes around to the exit door and comes in.

"There's another way they do it, too. A whole bunch of guys will buy one ticket. The fellow who gets that ticket comes in and opens the exit door for the rest."

But, surprisingly enough, the "sneakers" are not the only worry. There are some people, the ushers have found, that walk right by the door with no ticket for their child and become very perturbed when asked about it.

"Quite a few mothers come in with no tickets for their children," Buzzard said. "We can't stop some of them, although we should and could."

Ushers, Edward Parry, 16, left, and Loren Buzzard, 17, are on the alert for both humorous and not-so-comical incidents which happen every day at the theater.

John Prather, 17, is the first fellow you meet in the Madison theater lobby. Here he is shown tearing off the stub of a young patron's ticket.

BORROW FIRE ENGINE

WAUKEGAN, Ill. —(INS)— Two youths who "borrowed" a fire engine were in jail today at Waukegan. The youths, brothers and former sailors, are Kenneth, 19 and Jack Lund, 20, of Chicago. They told police their car ran off the road and overturned. Fearing it might catch fire, they said they went to nearby Round lake and "borrowed" the volunteer department engine.

EXECUTE STRANGLER

GUATEMALA—(INS)—Jose Miculax was executed today for the abduction and strangulation of 14 children. He confessed four of the murders. Mariano Macu, an accomplice in 11 of the murders, was sentenced to 30 years.

Russian Goes Home For Stalin Orders

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Informed diplomatic sources said today that Soviet Ambassador Nikolai V. Novikov is returning hurriedly to Moscow for consultation.

Novikov, who only recently presented his credentials to President Truman, was elevated from the post of counsellor of embassy after it became apparent that the duties as Soviet delegate to the security council would occupy all the time of his predecessor, Andrei Gromyko.

tors a good view of all aerial and ground activities but will keep them out of the way of whirling propellers.

A huge area north of the port hangers has been fenced in up to the edge of the near runway and surrounding the speakers stand. Some ground display planes are to be stationed just beyond the fences while others will have ramps installed on either side of them so that spectators can examine the cockpits of smaller planes and the cabins of larger ships.

As the time for the long-awaited dedication of the field crew rean, high-ranking aviation and military officials from all parts of the country were heading for Mansfield.

Scheduled to arrive by plane from Washington tomorrow is Congressman J Harry McGregor and James M Landis, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics board.

McGregor plns Gov. Frank J. Lausche and Mansfield's Mayor Roy W. Vaughn will be the key officials taking part in the dedication ceremonies tomorrow at 2 p. m. Civil Aeronautics Authority airport superintendent, Lane W. Wilcox will formally present the CAA-built field to the city.

Tomorrow morning the first of the huge commercial planes to be displayed are to arrive and later in the day a "parade" of 14 of the newest personal planes will take place

Stunt flying by three of the nation's top fliers will be performed on both dedication days as will the aerial maneuvers of numerous military craft.

Gardenias Due.

Tomorrow morning the "Gardenia Express," carrying 5,000 "Stardust Gardenias" from San Francisco will arrive at the port They'll be sold at the port by 60 sorority girls wearing especially designed hats made of gardenias

Sunday morning the "Cherry Special" bringing in three tons of Bing cherries from Wenatchee, Washington, is to land The cherries will be sold at the field.

Both "special" projects are designed to show one way in which the airport can serve the Mansfield area—quick shipment from distant points of perishable goods.

Heads Lions

Clifford D Pierce of Memphis Tennessee, is the new president of the International Association of Lions clubs He was unanimously advanced from the first vice-presidency to the presidency at the annual convention of the association which closes today in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Pierce succeeds retiring President Dr Ramiro Conzzo of Havana, Cuba. Secretary General Melvin Jones reported the formation of 655 new Lions clubs and the addition of 60 932 men to the roster of the association in the twelve-month period ended June 30, 1946, which raised the total club figure to 5,460 and the membership to 279,116, which is by far the largest in the history of the International Association.

Hitches Ride But Has to Pay for It

INDIANAPOLIS —(UP)— A 32-year-old painter stood at the roadside in outer Indianapolis thumbing a ride A police car came along, and he tried to hitch a ride The patrolmen didn't give the hitcher a ride, but told him he was going in the wrong direction

A half hour later, the same patrol car drove by the spot where the painter had been hitch-hiking, and he was still there. This time they picked him up—because he was drunk. Hearing the case, Judge John Niblak fined him $1 and costs silencing the painter's protest with "What are you complaining about—you got your ride, didn't you?"

RAPS READERS

Professor Says Magazines in 'Bubble-Gum' Stage.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—(CP)—Books and magazines written beyond the understanding of a sixth-grade pupil stand little chance of being widely read, according to Dr. Gerald A. Yoakam, University of Pittsburgh education professor.

Proof that America's reading habits are at the "bubble-gum" stage, Yoakam said, lies in the fact that the army during World War II had to keep its instructions at the fourth-grade level to be certain the soldier readers would have complete understanding.

And the general public wants its reading matter written in a sixth-grade manner, whether love or the atomic bomb is discussed The subject isn't important, he said Americans just want something simple to read.

Women's magazines average about half way through the seventh grade and love, sports and western magazines are about sixth grade, Yoakam said.

Yoakam's guide, known as the Thorndyke Index, takes into consideration vocabulary, length of sentences and complexities.

The professor believes the reading level of the nation must be raised to that of a 14-year-old could or "at least to where we can grasp the social and economic problems that confront us."

blade of an estimated four inches.

Glattke said that the weapon could have been obtained from the institution kitchen. Motive of the fatal stabbing was unknown.

The knife, Glattke added, was recovered on the cell range by Robert Frye, an institution guard. Frye was the only guard on duty in the cell section at the time of the stabbing.

Both youths were sentenced to the reformatory for a period of one year to age. Bruck was received Oct. 24, 1945, from Cuyahoga county on charges of assault to rob. Nichols was transfered from the industrial school on Dec. 17, 1942 from Hardin county on theft charges.

Mulching Makes Life Easier for Gardener

By DEAN HALLIDAY

If at this time of the season, hoeing and watering your vegetable garden gets you down why not try mulching?

Mulching is one of the best methods of conserving moisture for thirsty plants. Mulching material helps the soil to retain moisture by preventing rapid evaporation, and this in turn keeps the roots of plants from drying out. For this reason, mulching material should be applied after a good rain fall, and not during a dry spell.

Mulching also makes life easier for gardeners by keeping down weeds and thus saving hours of work with hoe or cultivator.

The use of mulching material between rows of vegetables is illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Mulching material can consist of straw, hay, dried lawn clippings or similar material.

Shallow rooted plants such as raspberries should be mulched to protect their roots from the danger of being scorched during the hot summer months.

Strawberry fruits will be found to be much cleaner than normally if mulching material is placed around the plants. Straw is especially good for mulching strawberries. A heavy mulch of straw around strawberry plants and between the rows will do away with the need for cultivating to keep down the weeds, a job always complicated by the spreading habits of strawberry runners.

When mulching fruit trees keep the mulching material from four to six inches away from the trunk, as illustrated. When a mulch is placed too close to the trunk of a fruit tree it affords a sheltered place for field mice which damage bark and roots.

Barkley Takes Witness Stand calls to that office.

The two had requested that they be allowed to appear. Also waiting to testify voluntarily was Chairman Sabath (D-Ill.) of the House Rules committee.

A secretary, Jean Bates, had told the committee earlier in the week of calls between the Munitions Combination Washington office and the offices of Barkley, McCormack, Sabath and Rep. May (D-Ky).

Barkley said:

"I wish merely to state I never knew anything about those calls"

He said that a Mrs. Charles Chance one of his office staff, had called two or three times trying to locate her husband, who was seeking employment. But he said Mrs. Chance had no occasion to discuss any business with the Garsson interests

Barkley said that "it's true" that his son David worked for a while for one of the companies in the combine, although he did not know the title of the job.

After the son was discharged from the army air forces after the war, Barkley said, he came to Washington and consulted various people about a job.

The senator said that Murray Garsson, one of the brothers involved in the munitions group, found out in some way the son was looking for a position and had him come down to a meeting.

"And when I got home that night, he had hired him," Barkley said. "I thought it looked like quick work."

and one of the comparatively few jet plane pilots in the army air corps.

Three years ago, Capt. McGuyrt left Mansfield to take part in the war with P-38 Lightning pilots in the Mediterranean air force. It was with this memorable air force that the pilot got a work out with the fighting, bombing, strafing planes.

Capt. McGuyrt came to the airport in 1941 in the original group of non-college students enrolled under the Civilian Pilot Training program with the Harrington Air Service as the instructing agency. His first flight was in a primary training ship with top speed of 65 miles per hour. Now he flies close to 400 miles per hour in his jet plane.

REGARDS U. S. PRESS UNFAIR TO RUSSIANS

Writer Says Nations Have No Quarrel and Must Live in Peace.

NEW YORK—(UP)—Ilya Ehrenbourg, Soviet writer, today sharply attacked the American press for alleged misrepresentation of Russia and asserted that at no point do American and Soviet interests clash.

Writing in Colliers Ehrenbourg contended that much information appearing in the American press about Russia was false or distorted and led to tension in American and Soviet relations.

"Now where do our interests clash with those of the Americans —neither on the map of the world nor in our hearts," he said. "America is a big country and Russia is not very small. We can live in peace and we must live in peace. We do not want to force our ideas or tastes on others. I think that we can learn a great deal from the Americans and the Americans can learn a great deal from us."

Ehrenbourg, now in Paris, has just concluded a two and a half month visit to the United States under the sponsorship of the state department.

He charged that the American press was preoccupied by the "iron curtain" which was alleged to hide Russia and the Soviet zone in Europe from the rest of the world.

"Actually," he said, "Russia is hidden from Americans by a smokescreen of lies and this screen is the creation of many American newspapers. The wind will dispers a smokescreen. What will disperse a screen of lies?"

Ehrenbourg blamed diplomats as well as newspapers for clashes between Russia and the United States.

Mansfield Mail Goes Through Despite Those Ancient Trucks That Must Be 'Nursed Along'

Post Office Has Four 14-Year-Old Second-Hand Vehicles, Finds Them Inefficient, Costly.

By ARTHUR ANDERSON

Been having trouble with your old car lately?

When she rattles and creaks along, do you wish that the new model you've ordered would hurry and get here?

Or when you are in a hurry and her chugging becomes jerky and she coughs out, do you lose your temper and wish you had never seen the old wreck?

If you do—then you are a cinch to sympathize with Acting Postmaster Curtis L. Ford and the boys who drive the parcel post delivery trucks at the Mansfield Post Office.

They are nursing along four trucks of 1931-32 vintage whose total "out of operation" time for the first-half of 1946 amounts to 63 working days.

"Last year we spent more money for servicing, maintainence and materials for the four trucks than the amount of their original cost," Ford said.

But the mail must go through—and go through it has—even when that meant putting other drivers on the ancient trucks after the regularly assigned drivers have put in their eight hour day, so that the vehicles could be kept moving from daylight to dark.

Many times it has also meant keeping trucks moving on Sundays and even hiring other trucks to keep abreast of the volume of parcel post, the collection of mail from the boxes, or the relays to foot carriers on their routes.

(A foot carrier does not have to carry more than 50 pounds of mail which necessitates trucking the poundage above that amount out to relay points along his route.)

Hopes, With Reason.

Small wonder then that Ford is hoping the Mansfield Post Office will get several of those thousands of trucks which a national publication recently reported that the Post Office Department was planning to purchase.

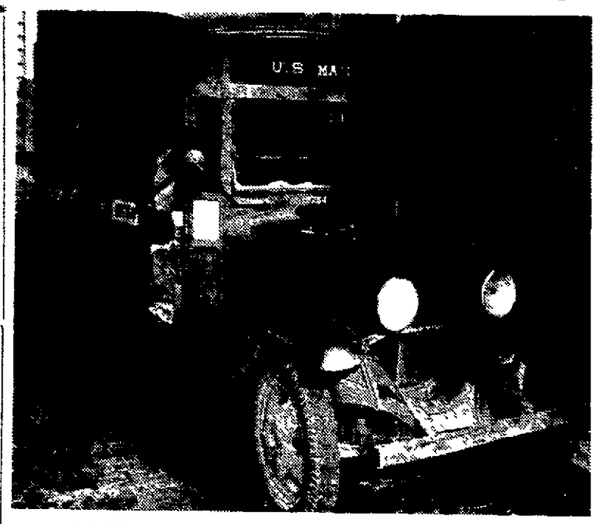
Moreover if the recommendations made following a recent three-month inspection and five-day count of weigh, are approved in Washington the Mansfield Post Office department will have six parcel post truck routes where they now have four.

During the inspection which was made in April, May and June it was determined that in spite of the numerous breakdowns, the trucks were running routes whose average length in time was 7 0 hours and four minutes instead of eight hours which is the time layout for a normal route.

Imagine the problem then, when breakdowns occur, as they sometimes do—in bunches.

"Sometimes we have finished a day with only one truck operating," Ford said.

"Then the only way that we can keep abreast the volume of mail is to hire other trucks," Ford explained.



"MAYBE She'll Go!" might be the title of this photo of one of the four parcel post trucks at the loading dock in the rear of the post office waiting to tote another groaning load of mail to Mansfielders.

Nobody knows how many pounds of mail the trucks have hauled but the boys around the post office will tell you it has been both a heavy and painful tonnage.

163 Miles, 746 Stops.

On one day during the five-day count of weigh they traveled 163 miles around Mansfield, made 746 stops to either deliver or pick-up 1,887 parcels of mail.

The burden of extra tonnage becomes even more impressive with a glance at the 1945 maintainence record. During that year one or more of the trucks were out of service for a total of 118 days, while they were undergoing repairs.

None of the trucks were new when they reported for duty at the Mansfield office.

One half-ton 1931 model had seen service at Marion, Niles, Massillon, Akron and again at Massillon before reporting to Mansfield in 1932.

The other three all 1932 models had seen even more service before reporting to Mansfield. One was received in 1939, one in 1944 and one in 1945, post office records reveal.

Magician, Orchestra Leader Hurl Mental And Verbal Stones In Mind-Reading Feud

NEW YORK —(UP)— Joe Dunninger and Dick Himber started feuding again today and if they can read each other's minds, no wonder.

"I bet him all the tea in China he can't read my mind," Maestro Himber sneered.

"I already bet 10 grand nobody can duplicate my act, so let him put up or shut up," Dunninger snapped.

The orchestra leader and the magician have been throwing harpoons at each other from a distance for a couple of years, and their feud can be settled only if they square off for a mental duel in public. Himber says he's ready and Dunninger says he will accept the challenge if Himber will quit talking nonsense.

"I wouldn't say 'boo' to him if he came out and did his act and let it go at that," Himber said. "But when he claims he's reading your mind, he's a dead pigeon. I for—well, let's call it intestinal fortitude, he should get the Academy award."

"Himber doesn't accept my offer to pay 10 grand to anyone who can duplicate my act, under the same conditions, without any written notations being requested or used," Dunninger said. "All he says is that I can't read his mind.

"Now, I ask you, how can I rely on his honesty to tell me whether or not I have read his mind. He can always say 'no, I wasn't thinking about that,' can't he? It's nonsense."

The feud's latest flareup came when Dunninger, during his mind-reading act at the Biltmore hotel's Cascade roof, referred to Himber, who was playing at the Riviera in the Palisades on the other side of the Hudson river.

Himber quoted Dunninger as having said:

"There's a chubby little man across the river who says I can't read his mind. Has he got a mind to read?"

"A thousand magicians use his methods," Himber said. "I can't jeopardize their livelihood by revealing how he does it, but under test conditions I'll take that $10,000 bet that he can't read anybody's mind."

Himber said the "test conditions" would include putting Dunninger in a room by himself, handcuffed "without any devices" and with no means of communicating with any confederate.

"I'll duplicate his act, too," Himber said. "Why, I did it two years ago at the Barbizon Plaza theater, and did he pay off the $10,000? No, he ran around the country, hiding and never showing he ever heard about my performance."

Open Hearings On Voegele Estate Case In Court Today

Disposition of $33,336 in proceeds from the sale of two parcels of real estate in Huntington, W. Va., owned successively by the Charles H Voegele and Anna E. Voegele estates, was to be determined in a hearing begun in common pleas court this morning.

Charles H. Hughes, administrator of the Charles H., Voegele estate and executor of the Anna E. Voegele estate, filed the action after beneficiaries of both estates claimed the money on the basis of differences in Ohio and West Virginia law and uncertainties in Mr. Voegele's will.

Mr. Voegele, who died Aug. 22, 1926, willed the property to his widow, Anna, with the provision that it be sold and the proceeds delivered to his beneficiaries after her death.

However, his will also contained the clause "she to have full control thereof" and Mrs. Voegele's beneficiaries claim the $33,336 should be included as part of her estate. In addition, they declare that, under West Virginia law, her life estate in the property amounts to a fee simple title.

Attorney for the plaintiff is William F. Voegele. The case is being heard by Charles D. Hayden, Knox county common pleas judge, in the absence of Richland County Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch who is on vacation.

LABOR SPLIT OVER AID TO SEN. KILGORE

West Virginian's Candidacy For Re-election Divides CIO and AFL.

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—(AP)—The efforts of U S. Senator Harley M. Kilgore, consistent New Deal Democrat, to keep his seat for a second term may align the CIO and AFL on opposite sides this fall at the West Virginia polls.

The United Mine Workers (AFL), which backed Kilgore when he won the Democratic nomination in 1940, has not endorsed publicly any senatorial candidate in the Aug. 6 primary election.

On the other hand, the 53-year-old senior senator is the only candidate of either major party to receive public endorsement by West Virginia's CIO political action committee.

With the CIO favoring the man who has championed vigorously every New Deal cause since he took his seat in the senate, and the AFL-UWM standoffish in the primary some sources see as a November possibility that Kilgore would run on the Democratic ticket with full CIO support while the UMW might plump for former Republican State Senator Thomas B. Sweeney of Wheeling, whom Kilgore defeated in 1940. That would depend, of course, upon whether Kilgore and Sweeney win their primary contests.

The UMW, which claims a voting strength of 200,000, has drafted a "slate" of approved candidates on both primary tickets, but the list was not made public.

However, the best sources say that "slate" skipped the senate contests between Kilgore and J. Buhl Shahan, former state purchasing director, and the Republican battle between Sweeney and Claude R. Hill, 10-term mayor of the southern mining town of Oak Hill.

It is common knowledge that relations between Kilgore and UMW leaders have cooled since he ran under mine worker sponsorship six years ago. Shahan has made campaign use of a photographic copy of a letter from Washington headquarters of the union expressing displeasure with Kilgore's stand on some legislative matters.

This does not mean, however, that the United Mine Workers are "against" the senator. According to the best information available, it means merely that UMW members will vote as they please in the primary and the leadership will decide later what policy is to be adopted for the November election

Kilgore was called from a county judgeship at Beckley to head the ticket in 1940 when Matthew Mansfield Neely, then three-term senator from West Virginia, was elected governor.

Because of the legislative crush in Washington, Kilgore has cancelled more speeches in West Virginia than he has made during the campaign, but some eight or ten radio stations broadcast 15-minute transcriptions by the senator each week. He talks about everything from cartels to reconversion, and urges the folks to write to him on any subject which comes to mind.

Kilgore's influential position in the senate is a major reason why his political enemies in the state find fault with him. Critics contend that he is too absorbed in the world and national affairs to bother about the little senatorial chores which keep constitutents happy.

TURN FARMERS AWAY AS GRAIN ELEVATORS FILL

Lack of Freight Cars Blamed By Shelby Dealers; Price Falls.

SHELBY—Farmers are being turned away from two grain elevators which have been filled with the local harvest of the wheat crop as the price of wheat here dropped from a $2.04 high a week ago to $1.90 today.

Blame was placed by elevator officials on lack of railroad cars for shipping the grain.

Reports from the Richland Farm Bureau branch manager, Dale Southard, show that only two cars have been received since the harvest started. Each car holds 2,000 bushels. Similar trouble was reported by E. R. Fought, manager of the Shelby Equity elevator.

Grain still was being received Thursday at the J. C. Morris elevator which had a car on hand that was expected to go out soon.

The bins at the Moody and Thomas Milling company are kept full. They take wheat as fast as the mill turns out the flour. Wheat will be received there today.

At 7 Thursday morning 11 loads of wheat were lined up at the Shelby Equity. One evening this week 2,500 bushels of wheat were received from 6:30 p. m. until closing time at 10 p. m. Thursday morning the elevator received 3,500 bushels.

Crestline Plans Parking Meters

CRESTLINE—A representative of a parking meter company this week was making a survey of downtown streets to determine the number of meters needed to adequately handle parking here.

The representative received the approval of the city council to make the survey. He will report his findings to the council Monday.

Say Trains Delay Traffic In Ashland

ASHLAND — Complaints that Erie trains are blocking traffic for long periods at the Cottage street crossing have been filed with Ashland city police by a number of factory workers who claim delay in getting to work.

One train is reported to have delayed traffic for more than ten minutes. The complaints have been referred to C. A. Crim, Ashland agent for the Erie railroad.

CRESTLINE

One application for membership was balloted and accepted and one new one read at the meeting of the Eagles Auxiliary this week. Mrs. Lloyd Moorhead presided and plans for an anniversary banquet, August 5, were discussed. Following the dinner the group plans to return to the Eagles club for a program and dancing.

RIDDELL BOOSTS JACQUE JONES

Bucyrus Corporation Places War Veteran in General Manager Post.

BUCYRUS — Advancement of Jacque E. Jones to general manager of the W. A. Riddell corporation was announced today by C. T. McConnell, company president.

A change on the board of directors also was announced. J. Baird Johnson has been named to succeed his late father, George B. Johnson of Chardon.

Jones, 36, a native of Cleveland, is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan. Until 1943 he was manager of the war products division of the Dobeckmun company at Cleveland, parachute manufacturers. From 1943 to 1946 he was in military service.

CAR COVERED

Prowl Car Insurance Among New London Budget Items.

NEW LONDON — City police prowled the town with less apprehension today. Their new cruiser was completely covered by insurance.

The insurance, along with the cost of the car, $1,159, was included in the 1947 budget approved this week by the city council.

The new budget was $3,000 over that for 1946.

IN CLEVELAND

SHELBY — Miss Josephine Hoover, superintendent of Memorial hospital attended a meeting of the Northeastern district council of the Ohio Hospital association Thursday at the Hotel Cleveland in Cleveland.

WALKOUT ENDS AT GALION; MEN RETURN TO JOBS

Sheet Metal Workers at Steel Products Back at Work Pending Wage Talks.

GALION — Approximately 90 men who walked out at the Central Onio Steel Products company Tuesday afternoon because of a dispute on incentive pay and wage adjustments, were back at work today.

The wage dispute was confined to the sheet metal division of the vault and dump body divisions of the company, but included some sympathizers in other divisions. Late Wednesday afternoon they voted to return to work Thursday pending negotiations.

The misunderstanding arose, the workers said, when the company did not make a promised wage adjustment. A similar dispute arose earlier in the year. At that time the management and workers reached an agreement. Other departments of the plant were to receive the same benefits later but this had not been carried out, the workers said.

Workers at the plant are members of the International Association of Machinists.

Couple Celebrate 50th Anniversary

BUCYRUS—Mr. and Mrs. George H. Miller will observe their 50th wedding anniversary in Slusser Memorial United Brethren church, Akron Sunday by renewing the vows they made a half century ago.

Mr. Miller is associated with his two sons, Floyd and Calvin, in building construction. A daughter, Mrs. Margurite Richards, lives in Akron.

Stockyards and Outhouses Still Irk Bucyrus, New London

Sanitation problems were still foremost in the minds of residents of Bucyrus and New London this week as continued attempts were made in both places to improve conditions considered objectionable and a threat to public health.

In Bucyrus no progress was made by citizens of the east side to have the stockyards of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads removed. More than 40 signed a petition seeking to outlaw the pens but the city council, to which the petition was submitted, failed to act.

Meanwhile the railroads were maintaining the removal of the pens would cost an estimated $20,000, and would require the approval of teh road's board of directors and the Interstate Commerce commission.

A railroad representative who appeared before the council implied the petition was "driving business out of the city."

In New London city officials were cracking down on residents within reach of the sewer system who still maintain outside lavatories.

They were told to remove the outbuildings and clean up their property or the city would at the meeting of the city council.

ASK NEW LEVY

MT. GILEAD — The Marengo board of education at their last meeting voted to ask Bennington school district electors for a 3-mill levy increase at the fall election to meet the increased costs and for school improvements. The present two mill levy expires this year.

The Marengo board will ask that a five mill levy be approved for five years.

BUILDINGS PURCHASED

MT. GILEAD—The North Electric company of Galion has completed the purchase of two Mt. Gilead buildings from Ewert Bruce and Mrs. Mattie Bruce for use in the manufacture of telephone equipment and related products. The company has had a Mt. Gilead plant in operation since May, 1942.

To Get Pheasants In Morrow County

MT. GILEAD — Six hundred pheasants are scheduled to arrive in Morrow county Friday, July 26, from the Newark pheasant farm, according to Guy Thompson, Morrow county game warden. The birds will be distributed to farms in Morrow county for feeding for a five-week period after which they will be released throughout the county.

Thompson arrested three Cardington residents during the last week for fishing without a license. Thomas R. Todd, Vernon Norell and Wilson Hansel were all fined $15 and costs when arraigned before Justice of the Peace James Bennett.

BIRDS DUMPED IN JUDGE'S LAP

Final Word Awaits H. E. Andrews of Ashland Police Court on Monday.

ASHLAND—Police Judge Harold F. Andrews will find the mysterious "bird massacre" awaiting him when he returns to his duties Monday, Police Chief Harry Smith said today.

The police chief said that it may be possible to identify persons responsible for the alleged poisoning of the 63 birds, mostly starlings and sparrows, found dead in the vicinity of East Twelfth street.

Final action in the investigation will be determined by the city's police judge, Chief Smith said. He declined to make any further explanation concerning the police department's investigation of the alleged bird poisoning.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, JULY 19, 1946

This is called a "seller's market," but buyers are necessary to keep it that way.

Maybe it is because world problems have become so big that the people who are trying to handle them appear so small.

Don't get so "air minded" Saturday and Sunday that you forget the many things that are still to be done on the ground level.

Awakening From Pleasant Dream

A YEAR AGO, when the war ended, the American people were regaled from all sides with forecasts concerning the reconversion of industry and the production of consumer goods. According to optimistic predictions, the country would soon be treated to an enormous flood of merchandise ranging from unlimited quantities of nylons to revolutionary new-era automobiles.

The truth has turned out to be the exact opposite. As Benjamin H. Namm, president of the National Retail Dry Goods association, put it in a recent address: "I do not hesitate to state that there's less good, staple merchandise available at popular prices today than at any time in my experience as a retail merchant. There are less shirts, hosiery and men's clothing on retail shelves than at any time during the war years, when we were fighting two wars on widely separated fronts, maintaining an armed force of 12 million men and sending out vast quantities of goods under lend lease.

"We have governmental reports, of course that our production is the 'highest in years.' These figures, however, are grossly misleading. They take no cognizance of quality deterioration, the disappearance of low-price goods, subsidies or the greatly decreased value of the dollar."

It takes no expert to understand that failure of congress and administrative officials to develop a practicable domestic reconversion policy, looking to the general welfare rather than catering to aggressive pressure groups, is responsible for much of the present muddled situation, and the way in which OPA has been fumbled can be taken as an indication of more trouble ahead.

Contrast In Processes of 'Justice'

SELDOM has opportunity been given for such observation of sharp contrasts as is found in the Seattle acquittal of a Russian naval officer charged with espionage and conspiracy against the United States, and the farcical trial that was given General Mihailovich in Yugoslavia before his hurried execution following assured imposition of the death penalty, on charges of collaborating with the Germans.

The trial of Lt. Nicolai Redin, Soviet naval officer, as it was conducted in Seattle, exemplified the American ideas of justice, while the trial, conviction and execution of Mihailovich exhibited the ruthlessness of a dictatorial government toward anyone opposed to those in power at the moment.

Hostility to communism and Russian domination of Yugoslavia appears as the main factor in the predetermined conviction and execution of Mihailovich. The doomed Chetnik leader was not permitted to testify in his own behalf, nor were the American airmen whom he rescued allowed to appear as witnesses.

Bitterness of the enmity between Premier Tito and Gen. Mihailovich was such as to assure the tragic outcome, which is a reflection on the perpetrators of what must be regarded as a crime against civilization.

Make the Old Car Last Awhile Yet

PURCHASE of a new automobile is another of the things that may well be deferred for awhile by any except those who are in desperate need of a car for absolutely ESSENTIAL transportation.

Manufacturers and dealers alike are telling people that production of new cars is so far short of even most urgent requirements that nothing can be promised in the way of deliveries and that prospective purchasers cannot hope to have any choice in make, model or finish for a long time to come.

It is also worthy of note that some purchasers of the few new cars that have been coming through are already complaining of mechanical defects which can reasonably be expected to be absent from later products, and this has caused a number of prospective buyers to decide to wait until the "bugs" have been ironed out, rather than hurrying to get a new car.

Meanwhile it appears that best procedure is for motorists to do everything possible to keep the old car in running condition, so as to give supply a chance to catch up with demand before negotiating for a new one.

As 'GBS' Reaches Ninety

THE WORLD'S most interesting 90-year-older will enter that select group on July 26. He is George Bernard Shaw, playwright, novelist, essayist, Socialist, vegetarian and utterer of opinions on all sorts of subjects, some of the opinions being sound and all of them witty.

So well has Shaw blown his own trumpet that, with the death of President Roosevelt, he became perhaps the only man whose mere initials are familiar around the world. GBS means one man and one man only.

How has Shaw attained this advanced age? This question, asked of all oldsters, has probably been propounded to Shaw. An explanation as likely as any to come from his lips is the statement that he authorized for the English Who's Who: "Recreation: anything except sport."

Adding his bit to the anti-inflation crusade, Mike Jacobs, the fight promoter announces a drop from $100 to $30 as top price of tickets to the next heavyweight fiasco.

The life story of General MacArthur has become a best seller in Japan—as the Japanese have always shown an interest in learning the American "how-to-buy."

Assignment: America

—By KENNETH L. DIXON

Strangers Suspected Of Being "Snoopers."

SEATTLE, WASH. — There's something deeply saddening nowadays in the daily spectacle of a democratic nation's people steadily growing more and more suspicious of their own government.

If, as a roving reporter who must ask many questions of many people, you run into the same sort of hackle-bristling hostility, day in and day out for months, eventually you begin to wonder as to its cause.

And when you finally find out that it's because you, as a stranger with a pencil and notebook, might be a government agent, sleuth or spy, or some lesser bureaucratic tale-bearer then your mind goes one step farther and wonders what's the cause of that.

Is such a state of mind on the part of the average small citizen the result of too much bureaucratic slapping-around?

Does that suspicion, like the mountain-moonshiner's mistrust of all curious strangers, grow out of actual law-breaking on the part of many people?

Or is it a belligerent re-birth of that old American creed of individual independence, based on the "you mind your business and I'll mind mine" principle?

But mainly you wonder just how long this democracy can remain "of the people, by the people and for the people," in the face of that growing chasm between the government and the very citizens it's supposed to represent.

If you think that's over-dramatizing this chip-on-the-shoulder belligerence, you should ride a few days with this correspondent.

Daily, I talk with scores of people, sometimes hundreds, on current subjects varying from atom bombs to nylon hose. In almost every instance I must confront them as a total stranger.

If I enter their business establishment on a legitimate errand, to buy something or seek directions, and just drift into idle talk, they seldom get suspicious.

But if I dare: (1) Take out pencil and paper or, (2) ask any leading questions about postwar business, reconversion worries, supply troubles or price problems, they freeze up.

Further conversation is completely futile, at least until I've presented enough credentials to prove I'm—a bona fide newspaperman and not a government gumshoe.

Then, nine out of ten people tell the same tale about why they wouldn't talk—a sad story of troubles with sleuths and stool pigeons from federal bureaus, ration boards and price and tax agencies—and a story which always concludes with the moral:

"Never trust a stranger, for he may be a government agent!"

The tenth person still stays silently unconvinced, obviously regarding me as just another revenuer in reporter's pants.

From a personal point of view, sometimes it's funny. More often it's embarrassing. A tire-dealer in San Francisco suddenly decided he couldn't sell me a new tire after all, when I started asking routine questions.

Here in Seattle, a garage-owner not only refused to talk personally, but also warned all his crew to keep quiet, or else!

Always it's time-wasting. It takes endless hours to get okays, credentials and introductions by local newspapermen, chambers of commerce, union headquarters and the like. But without them, you'll just be expending useless energy in many a town.

More than anything else, the whole situation is saddening and thought-provoking.

Perhaps it's because the government has been given—or has grabbed—too much power during the war and postwar emergencies. Perhaps the tail now wags the dog.

But whatever the cause or wherever the fault, one little trip around the country will convince you that either we're not regaining our government "by the people" very fast, or else a lot of citizens are still mighty scared of their own shadow!

Dave Boone Says:

AS Senator Vandenberg says, the only hope of world peace is genuine determination by Russia to trust somebody else. It's just too bad that Moscow insists on suspicions for breakfast, boiled epithets for lunch, and baked recriminations for dinner, with creamed distrusts.

Joe Stalin seems to think that everybody, especially his allies and friends, are connivers, double-dealers, artful dodgers and ship scuttlers. If he got on first base and you brought him in with a home run he would refuse to come in for fear you were trying to put something over on him.

It's amazing how much the story being brought out by the Mead committee in Washington resembles interludes in two broadway shows "Born Yesterday" and "State of the Union." And they are both supposed to be laugh plays with far-fetched yarns!

'Ism' Fanatics Endanger Peace

By DEWITT M'KENZIE

SENATOR Arthur H. Vandenberg in his report to the senate on the Paris parley of the Big Four foreign ministers, at which he acted as an adviser to Secretary of State Byrnes, declared that the great trouble between eastern communism and western democracy "is mutual distrust and suspicion which the 'iron curtain' between us, and which the insatiable Soviet appetite for proselyting and propaganda, do not help dispel."

That puts the existing threat to peace on a thumb-nail. The senator points out that "these things must be dispelled, not in pretense but in fact, if we are to get on with the vital business of peace on earth." Particularly there must be dispelled any suspicion that the West is trying to organize the world against our western civilization.

How then are these suspicions to be dissipated? That's a difficult problem and especially since, as Senator Vandenberg reminds us, eastern communism and western democracy "differ in ideas, ideals and ideologies."

The first thing we must recognize, as I see it, is that there is no profit in laying all the blame for this situation at Moscow's door, even if we should agree with former British Prime Minister Winston Churchill's assertion a couple of weeks ago that "the seeds of a new World war are being sown" in Soviet-influenced areas of eastern Europe.

Nor would Russia help matters by assessing all the fault against the western democracies, although Moscow has been mincing no words recently in charging that her allies were indeed trying to organize the world against her.

So if recriminations not only won't solve the difficulty, but make it worse—what then? One wonders whether there may be an idea for a pact of amity among the Allies in the procedure followed when the United States finally recognized the Soviet Union in 1933 and diplomatic relations were established. At that time Moscow was asked to give several guarantees, among which was this:

"The Soviet government pledges itself to refrain from the dissemination of propaganda against the political or social order of the United States, or attempting in any way to overthrow American institutions, and to restrain any agency under direct or indirect Soviet control from interfering with the internal affairs of this country."

If such a guarantee against "proselyting and propaganda" was sound in 1933 (and this may be debatable in view of subsequent developments) it conceivably might form the basis now for a reciprocal treaty among the powers.

I don't mean a one-sided pact but a mutual pledge under which each nation would bind itself to mind its own business.

That is to say, the right of every country to work out its own political salvation without outside interference would be recognized.

Of course there has been a tremendous change since 1933. Russia has progressed from the position of a nation anxious for recognition to that of dominant power in continental Europe. She might not be in the mood to tie her hands by any agreement which would hamper her in extending her zone of influence and in spreading communism.

Still, there's nothing more certain than that any effort by the Soviet to carry out a "world revolution" to communize all nations would result in another global war. It's equally sure that use of strong-arm methods by the western democracies to prevent nations from voluntarily adopting Communism would produce an upheaval. Those facts must be accepted, pact or no pact.

This doesn't mean—and this also must be clearly recognized—that the Western democracies shall not fight Communism within their own borders tooth and nail. And this they may be expected to do.

There is nothing in that, however, which precludes communistic nations and western democracies from living in amity. We won the war together; why not the peace?

Guarding Against Atomic Energy Monopoly.

WASHINGTON—A few potent lobbyists have succeeded in creating a lot of unnecessary confusion over the question of patents on atomic energy devices. The atomic energy bill as adopted unanimously by the senate seemed to take care of the matter in the only practical and logical way.

That is, it did until the lobbyists began to work their spell in closed meetings of the house military affairs committee. Invoking the magic words "private enterprise," these special pleaders overlooked the fact that an atomic energy patent could lead to one big monopoly wrapping up all the industry of this country. Surely, "private enterprise" could not be stretched to cover such an outcome.

The patent provisions in the atomic energy bill as passed by the senate forbid any private patents in the production of fissionable material or in atomic weapons.

That is hardly open to challenge, since the atomic energy commission will have the sole right to produce fissionable material and will also have exclusive control over all atomic weapons.

The differences begin over the provisions for patents on devices using fissionable material. The McMahon bill specifies that any one taking out such a patent must license it for use to any and all applicants. A board to be named by the atomic energy commission would supervise these licenses and the compensation coming from them.

It is here, according to the eloquent special pleaders, that "private enterprise" gets its toes stepped on. But before this argument is taken too seriously, it would be well to consider what would happen without such a provision.

Suppose, for example, the Pennsylvania railroad were to announce that it had moved a train of freight cars from New York to Washington with an engine powered by atomic energy. And suppose experts for the railroad were able to show that, in full operation, the atomic energy engine would cost about one-tenth as much as a coal or oil-burning engine.

No crystal gazing is required to see what this would mean. It would mean that, if one railroad had an exclusive patent on such a device, every other railroad bankrupt within a short time or selling out to the patent holder.

The same thing would happen if one of the automobile companies got an exclusive patent on an atomic energy motor which would operate at a small fraction of the cost of operating a gasoline motor.

Any real competition would be out the window and we would have one giant corporation making all motor cars.

In addition, it's important to realize that the fissionable material for use in the engine on which one company had an exclusive patent would come only from the atomic energy commission.

In effect, that would put the government in partnership with a monopoly — and a monopoly more powerful than any one ever dreamed of. If we are to continue to have a democracy, that would be politically impossible.

Atomic energy cannot be treated as though it were just another device. It carries with it a threat of dictatorship as absolute as its power is absolute.

Most Congressmen Regarded as Honest.

WASHINGTON—The case of Andrew Jackson May and his backstage wire-pulling for war profiteers illustrates two defects in our politico-congressional system which sooner or later must be cured.

1. The almost-life-or-death power of the chairman of any congressional committee over executive branches of the government.

2. The fact that certain congressional districts are so dominated by political bosses that no matter what a man does in Washington he can't be defeated for re-election at home.

Congressman May comes from a district in the Kentucky mountains, many of whose people now regard him as something of a hero. They believe that Jack May can do no wrong.

Prior to Mr. May's incumbency, his district sent a Republican, John Langley to congress. He landed in jail for bootlegging. But even after he had been convicted, Langley was re-elected to congress. And when it became clear that Langley could not adequately represent his district while behind bars, his loyal constituents sent his wife to congress instead.

From Boston, Rep. James Curley, another Democrat, served in congress for some time while under indictment. Finally, when he was convicted for war frauds, Curley was carried through the streets of Boston on the shoulders of cheering admirers.

In Georgia, not long ago, the justice department attempted to convict Congressman Frank Welchel for selling postmasterships, but a local jury refused to convict. Later when the justice department discovered that Congressman Gene Cox, also of Georgia, had been paid for lobbying against the government, the attorney general, deciding no local jury would convict, brought no prosecution.

In the whole history of the United States only one senator has been convicted for lobbying for profit against his government—Senator Joseph R. Burton, a Republican from Kansas. Yet newsmen and others who watch the Capital close up know of cases where unscrupulous congressmen have taken money for working against the Federal government.

Actually, the great majority of congressmen are absolutely honest. This writer, who has seen something of foreign parliaments, from the chamber of deputies in Paris to the schupstina in Belgrade, is convinced that, outside the British empire, no other group of legislators are so honest personally as the American congress. Misquided and frequently wrong they may be, but most of them are honest.

Yet, it is a few bad apples in the congressional barrel that poisons the reputation of the rest.

That is why this column has urged that congressmen register their business transactions, their purchases on the stock market, their speculations in rye, silver and cotton, and the chief clients of their law firms with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Wall street is now required to register with the SEC. Every corporation is required to disclose its major salaries to the SEC. Equally important is the need for our legislators, most of whom have nothing to hide, to disclose their non-government business connections.

Had Congressman May registered with the SEC his connection with the mysterious Erie Basin Lumber company; had he registered the fact that he was president of the Greenbrier Manganese Mining company at the time it was seeking a war contract, then the public would have had a chance to judge for itself whether its interest or May's interest was being served.

"New South" Gradually Becoming Reality.

ATLANTA, GA. — A fellow should be permitted to get a bit personal when he comes back home.

When I was a youngster here it always seemed like a long way from the South to anywhere else, like going to another country. That feeling still persists, for some strange reason, but in reverse.

That is, when you've lived away a long time, even only so far as Washington, D. C.; which is really on the edge of the South, the South begins to seem far away, like another country. When you decide to go back home you deliberate about the trip as if it were several days' journey, though it's only overnight on the train, and if you fly, it's only a jump.

That distance is only a state of mind, but it is definitely that. This is because of the obvious reason that the South has preserved its identity more surely than any other part of the country.

So it still seems, in some ways, a long way from the South to anywhere else. And a long way from anywhere else to the South.

Jonathan Daniels made the point several years ago in his penetrating book "A Southerner Discovers the South" that the South is not just one place, but many places. True enough. But still there is an atmosphere, a state of mind, that permeates a great stretch of territory.

The peculiar identity of the South is more accentuated today, the native finds when he returns, because the new and the old are in such sharp conflict for the moment. Perhaps the final conflict that precedes a new and better order. This is undoubtedly a state that is somewhat temporary and artificial, this present state of conflict, so that one must discount some of the bitterness. And there is plenty of bitterness, particularly over the racial issue, so-called.

Called up once again, from deep in the subconscious, is a longing for a society that has gone long ago. It was pleasant and precious to the comparatively few who could enjoy it, those who could clap their hands and have a host of Negroes scurry to their bidding. At least so it seems, though the South perhaps would deny it. It is the final resurgence of the master-and-slave complex.

That privileged status became most roseate just when it crumbled under the Civil war. Lovely even to those who never had it—though they fought for it—because they thought they might some time achieve it. It took the South a long time to come out from under the magnolias and the honeysuckle.

The second step has taken a long time, too, which was to get away from that state of mind left by the crumbling of a dynasty. But the South is well along on this second step now, as anyone who grew up in its traditions always saw when he returned in these last few years.

It is like coming out a showing of "Gone With the Wind" and walking down the street and seeing Negroes voting in large numbers, like any other citizens.

The first time on such a scale since the 90's when the "white primary" was invented in this very state to stop Negro voting because cheap politicians were exploiting ignorant Negroes for purposes that had nothing to do with their welfare.

It is good to come home again to what begins to look a little like the "New South" that the orators used to promise—though many of the orators did not mean exactly what we now find. It is good, despite the bitterness, and the dark spots, and the demagogs that still rant.

Farmer's Diary: "Underground Workers."

SOMETIMES the wild folk in the soil reveal new secrets of home building. If you see one woodchuck build his burrow, you have the pattern of all woodchuck houses. But there are variations in plant behavior and still more variations in animal life. That is the reason that plants and animals are interesting; that is why we can learn from them how to serve our purpose better.

Early one morning I happened along the slope of an abandoned field. The grade was steep and the soil very thin. Moss, algae and small lichens formed on the surface of numerous stones. Small timid clumps of poverty grass were here, but not even fertile seeds of sheep sorrel had found a foothold.

Yet, half way up, in the hollow of a small watercourse, I saw a large heap of newly excavated stone. Three weeks ago, when I walked over this same path, it was not there. Now this new heap contained as much as 200 pounds of stone, dug right from the hill.

They were native shale, some perhaps four pounds in weight. The opening from which they came was crammed with smaller stones. On one smooth surface, I clearly saw the grooves of sharp teeth, made upon one rough corner.

The pile was shaped much like the waste from a coal mine—only the material was grayish white. The morning sun shone hot, and I felt my whole body perspiring as I stood there. Compared with my own decreasing supply of energy, I was more than ever amazed at the quality of that woodchuck's ambition.

From all appearances it was a brand new home that he had excavated. I wondered if he had chosen his mate already, or was about to do so—and at this particular milestone of his life had attempted to show his prowess and his skill in carving out their new home. Certainly any female of the furry race could be justly proud of such real ambition and determination in such hot weather . . . only what a pity his brute strength had been unaccompanied by proper consideration for his environment!

He had dug out the rocks at the center of a small crevice where water would flow down after every rain and brim the lowermost opening. And on this barren slope, where would he find food? No clover or succulent timothy roots or garden truck were anywhere in his vicinity. Just how an ambitious woodchuck could wax enthusiastic over such an outlook was more than I could understand!

Craftier members of his race burrow beneath fence rows, about old stumps, in woodland shade where rhyzomes and clover are nearby. Fool or prodigy, I wondered . . . I shall follow his future with interest.

Radiological Monitors Have Dangerous Job In Bomb Test

ABOARD FLAGSHIP MT. McKINLEY.—(AP)—The fate of some of the Guinea pig ships in the atomic bomb tests in Bikini lagoon rests upon the word of a dozen junior officers

These youngsters — lieutenants and ensigns whose average age is 22 years—are the radiological monitors, the men who venture into the atom-bombed target areas to decide whether water and ships are "hot" with deadly radioactivity

Ships set afire or broken by the bomb test may burn or settle toward the sinking point, but until the monitors decide they are safe to board, no salvage party may fight the fire or seal off flooding holds

Their chiefs, Col Stafford Warren and Cmdr. Draper L. Kauffman, send along word to the task force high command only after they have had the reports and recommendations of the monitors The lads all volunteered for their dangerous jobs

Lt. (jg) Francis A Carrier of 24 Barney ave, Pawtucket, R I, says the first test produced no difficulties He hopes the second will be as easy to monitor, but isn't sure.

For one thing Carrier says, the expected extensive destruction of Test Baker probably will produce large amounts of floating debris—a hazard both from radiological and navigational standpoints Moreover, ships torn loose from moorings may drift haphazardly

The radiological safety patrol in the lagoon operates in progressive stages At the outset remote-control launches are sent in to sample the water

Six monitor teams traveling in groups of three or four boats each with eight or ten men including crewmen, then begin feeling for the "hot" spots

They have their own safety standards. Under them the maximum amount of radioactivity to which they (or anyone else) may subject themselves in any one day is one-tenth of a roentgen, a unit used in measurement of X rays. Actually, ten roentgens are considered tolerable amounts in many hospitals and laboratories

While reconnoitering after the first bomb burst July 1, one of the monitor teams encountered an area showing 6 5 roentgens on the Geiger counter, the device by which the X-rays are detected The team left the spot fast—and a red mark showed on the chart immediately

Lt. (jg) William B Davis of Gallatin Mo, says he has one man who "keeps one eye on his steering wheel and the other on the Geiger counter, and just about dies if the needle starts swinging over on the counter. He's going home to get married after this is over"

FRANKFORT, Ky — (U.P.) — "When does a pup become a dog?"

Attorney General Eldon S Dummit, construing Kentucky's dog license law, held that "when a pup is weaned it becomes a dog for purposes of licensing," and that for 'purposes of taxation a pup becomes a dog when it attains such an age as to be either a menace or an asset."

'Of course, considerable time may elapse between the time of weaning and maturity, but it is much easier to determine when a dog is weaned than to determine when a dog is finally matured," Dummit continued

"When a dog is weaned, it reaches that stage of life when it can feed itself and can get around by its own locomotion Naturally, the time of weaning will vary with each kind of dog"

The attorney general was asked for a construction of Kentucky's dog licensing law by the state department of agriculture

MARY SNIDER IS BRIDE OF C. H. EDGINTON

Double Ring Ceremony Takes Place In First English Lutheran Church Yesterday Morning.

YESTERDAY morning before the altar of the First English Lutheran church Miss Mary C. Snider, daughter of Mrs. Edith B. Smith, 340 West Third street, became the bride of Clarence H. Edginton, son of Mrs. Grover Frey, Mansfield, R. D. 3.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Carleth P. Mitchell.

The bride wore a seafoam blue dress with white accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Mrs. Paul Sferro, sister of the bridegroom, acted as matron of honor and wore a blue flowered dress with white accessories and a gardenia corsage.

Jack Hout, brother of the bride, served as best man.

A dinner was given immediately following the ceremony at the Fairview hotel.

When the couple return from their wedding trip they will reside at 340 West Third street.

The former Miss Snider is a graduate of Hayesville high school and Bliss College. She is employed at the Westinghouse Electric company.

Mr. Edginton attended schools in Springfield, O., and is employed at the Empire Steel company. He was recently discharged from the service after three years with the First Allied Airborne Army.

Central, First Methodist Circles Meet Thursday

Circle 2 of the Central Methodist church met Thursday afternoon at Middle park for a picnic. Guests present were Mrs. Ina Troup of Ashland and the Misses Martha and Mary Ewing.

Mrs. K. A. Bargahiser read a paper on "Opportunities in Africa."

The next meeting will be a picnic August 15.

Lodge Committees Meet at North Park

Members of the Hospital guild of the Women of the Moose chapter 47 met for a covered dish dinner at North Lake park last night.

Mrs. Samuel Faulkner, chairman, was in charge of the business meeting during which Mrs. Floyd Hughes was elected treasurer. Mrs. Lena Zibkob, secretary, and Mrs. John Breamet, reporter.

Plans for a Hollywood breakfast party were made. The party will be held Sunday, September 8 at 4 p. m. at the Moose home. Mrs. Faulkner presented Mrs. Andrew De Capio with birthday gift.

Prizes were won by Mrs. DeCapio, Mrs. Charles May and Mrs. Breamet.

The Aug. 22 meeting will be with Mrs. DeCapio, St. Claire avenue.

Also meeting for a covered dish dinner at North Lake park were members of the Mooseheaven committee of the Women of the Moose.

Present as a guest was Mrs. Fred Lewis, senior regent. Mrs. Henry Metzgar, chairman, conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Ivan Milligan was named secretary, Mrs. Betty Loughman, treasurer, and Mrs. Effie Keltner, reporter.

Prizes were awaded to Mrs. Corinne Jones, Mrs. Loughman and Mrs. Letha Hagaman.

Miss Eleanor Martin and Miss Romaine Gray will be hostesses for the covered dish dinner at North Lake park Aug. 15.

Mirrors Magnify Defects

By MME. QUI VIVE

To the woman who balks against having the correct number of candles placed upon her birthday cake, your good-looks reporter wishes to offer consolation. Maybe mirrors don't exactly lie but they do not flatter. Wrinkles that are scarcely noticeable loom up like irrigation ditches. Pouches under the eyes look twice as pouchy as they do to the onlooker. Coarse skin, too, is accented by the reflection in the looking glass.

Even so, within the sacred precincts of one's bedroom one should crystal-gaze, the crystal being a triple mirror that provides a panoramic view, sides and back, as well as front. No woman should be too busy to find out what the back of her head looks like. Observe the heads in front of you in the theater. Some are no credit to otherwise fastidious women who wear lovely clothes, are fussy about make-up.

Consulting the lady in the looking glass leads to better care of the complexion, the hair, the eyebrows, the lashes. Place your mirror in a strong light. Considerable, some of the fuzzy, patchy, too brilliant make-up one sees one is glad to fancy that some girls pix the powder pad, the compact and the lipstick in a dark room with their eyes shut. If they did they couldn't possibly make a worse job of what they quaintly consider beautifying attentions.

When make-up is applied discreetly and cleverly it is a boost to the morale. It gives the countenance the modern touch. Putting on the high lights should be no rushing matter. We all know those hurrying-scurrying sisters who flip the lamb's wool pad so powder piles up in spots, thins out in others. They are the ones who use the rouge compact with scarcely a glance at the mirror, with the result that one cheek may be feverish-looking, the other one pale.

One cannot be too careful with the lipstick. There should be a clear-cut line around the lip edges. The coloring should extend fully to the lip corners. Applications should be made with the flesh extended, so the pigment will get into all the little creases, after which the surfaces should be massaged lightly with the fingertip.

It is lucky for us that we live in a time when synthetic aids are accepted. Our Puritan ancestors would be horrified if they could come back, look upon their girl children. In the sixteenth century during the reign of Queen Elizabeth, the use of powder and rouge called forth a scathing admonition from a famous Bishop Hall.

"Hear this, ye plaster-faced Jezebels," he shouted, "God will one day wash you in fire and brimstone." Wow! The wow isn't his, it is ours.

Couple Wed July 12 In St. Luke's To Reside Here

Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Oswalt who were married July 12 are residing with Mr. Oswalts parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Oswalt, Mansfield R. D. 2. Mrs. Oswalt is the former Miss Kathryn Liston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gutshall of Shelby.

The couple were united in marriage by Rev. Herbert Garnes in the parsonage of the St. Luke's Lutheran church.

For her wedding the bride wore an aqua dress with white accessories and a corsage of yellow rose buds.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gordon attended the couple.

Mr. Oswalt was recently discharged from the U. S. Army after service of 22 months, 15 of which were spent in France and Germany.

ASTHMA

SUFFERERS FIND CURB FOR MISERY DUE TO ASTHMA ATTACKS

Supply Rushed Here — Sufferers Rejoice

New hope for relief from distress of asthma paroxysms is announced today in reports of success with a palliative formula which has the power to relieve asthmatic and bronchial congestion. Men and women who formerly suffered with dread coughing, choking, wheezing attacks of asthma paroxysms can tell of blessed relief after using it. PROMETIN costs $1.00, but considering relief experienced, this is not expensive, amounts to only a few pennies a dose. (Caution—use only as directed.) PROMETIN is sold with strict moneyback guarantee by Reed's Cut Rate Drugs—81 N. Main St. Mail Orders Filled.—Adv.

Flight Fashions for the Airminded

They're off! Three New York models arrive at airport, each with complete travel wardrobe sufficient for six months aboard, within transatlantic plane luggage limitations of 55 pounds. All three are wearing black gabardine coats of the same material used for navy officers' uniforms during the war. Coats are rainproof, wrinkleproof, can be used for casual or dress wear.

New York Notes

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

LIFE isn't like the movies—even the life of a movie star.

In a picture called "To Mary With Love" some years ago Myrna Loy as the heroine wistfully remarked: "People say the movies aren't true to life. Sometimes I wish life were more like the movies." She was right in her case, because at that point in the picture things weren't going very well for Mary; but most movie players have reason to be thankful that their private lives bear scant resemblance to the plots concocted for their starring vehicles.

For instance, on the screen the efficient big business woman usually pushed the man of her dreams up the ladder to fame and then steps aside with only the suspicion of a tear in her gallantly upraised eyes while he proceeds to the final closeup with a sweet inefficient young thing. That didn't happen, however, with Sue Carol and Alan Ladd. She managed him, and cleverly shoved him into the upper brackets—but she didn't lose him to a younger and more frivolous doll. She married him, because he just insisted and insisted. Now baby makes three and they're living happily ever after in the Hollywood equivalent of a vine-covered cottage.

In the scenarios, when a theatrical star marries into a very social family, the family chills her with icy glares and wounds her with well-planned snubs, and she winds up weeping into her crepe de chine pillowcases and wishing she had married the butcher boy. Not so with Dorothy Lamour and her bridegroom, whose ancestor's statue decorates a public square in Baltimore. His mother and brother and all his blueblooded friends were thrilled at the opportunity of welcoming a genuine motion picture actress into their lofty stratum. Furthermore Dottie—whose only finishing school was Miss Nobody's Seminary of Hard Knocks—is now firmly entrenched in the Baltimore social register.

Gary Cooper had a similar uncelluloid experience. He was just a (what am I saying, just a!) handsome slow-talking movie cowboy from Montana when he married Rocky Balfe of the cream of New York society—and what happened? Was he shunned by debbies at cotillions? Were heads averted when he entered the Colony for a snack? Was he a lonely figure on the beach at Southampton? Well, hardly. From the drawing rooms of Park Avenue to the sands of Newport, Gary's only worry was how he could live another day without being torn limb from limb by blueblooded admirers.

According to plot, the big successful star who married someone less famous and settled down to raising a family must always find an inner conflict pulling her back to the profession in which she made good.

But 20th Century Fox has found to its sorrow that Mrs. Phil Harris would rather be that than the celebrated Alice Faye any day in the week, including Thursday.

Your Figure, Madame

—By Ida Jean Kain

Designers are in accord that the most common figure fault, and the one that defies all tricks of the dressmaker's trade to disguise, is the stomach. It's largely the fault of that old corrective, "Hold your stomach in." The effect is "in," but actually the pull is "up," and that's the streamlining technique.

Once you get the hang of how the muscles work, it's easy to get the "up" habit. Think of the vertical muscles that band the abdominal wall as a pair of rubber bands, attached from stem to stern To get the right picture, I'd better explain that there is a median line running in front from the soft spot in the throat, down the middle of chest, and abdomen to the base of the torso, and the muscles pattern out from this center. On either side of this line there is a strap-like muscle that is attached at the top of the ribcage near the wishbone, or breastbone, and fastened at the other extreme to the pubic bone, or front of the pelvis.

All right, try pulling up with the wishbone. Start the up pull with the lower abdominal muscles and continue to the wishbone. The pull is centered through the middle of the figure and it's slimming

Now, out from this band of muscle on each side of the median line, run other bands of muscle, horizontal and criss-cross They are capable of pulling in, twisting and turning. Now it's plain to be seen, the muscle pull must be up to keep the verticle muscles stretched, and in to bring the side muscles into play. Also, that special exercises that make use of the two movements, up and in, are streamlining, and a twist brings the criss-cross muscles into play and slims the waist.

But even more important than exercise, is the habit of pulling up. Get the habit and before long the muscles themselves take over the job of pulling up Since you know where the muscle is attached, you can understand it's useless to elevate your shoulders. The pull must be at the wishbone, with shoulders relaxed.

To put the elasticity back in the muscular girdle, do a couple of simple conditioners . . .

Position: Sit on floor, legs wide apart, arms out at sides, shoulders relaxed. Pull up with lower abdominal muscles.

Movement: Now add a twist, whirling at the waist and bending touch fingers of right hand to outstretched right toes Keep pull slimmed throughout exercise, 12 counts.

Finish by sitting against the wall with small of back pressed snugly against the wall, by pulling up That's the correct way to sit and stand.

Approximately 195,000 head of sheep graze in southwestern Wyoming.

Setting Example Of Honesty

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Here is a letter which, no doubt, will please you as it pleased me.

"Dear Mr. Myers:—Some while ago you printed a letter from a mother of a child who takes things. I was a widow for 14 years with four children to rear and never had that problem. So I was thinking it was a pity she does not have a definite example that her child would know about as my children had.

"We lived in Chicago and my husband taught science in one of the high schools. But we had little money for we had the expenses of the children, a major operation for myself, besides debts for my husband's schooling. So it would have been very easy for him to keep a small coin purse that he picked up from the sidewalk in front of the drug store as he was walking home one day.

"But he stepped up into the drug store doorway, opened the purse, found no identification but about fifty dollars in money, so decided to wait and see if some one came hunting it. A very rabid Mr. X who had argued religion and politics with my husband, as with everybody else, standing there, thought it should be 'finders keepers.' But my husband insisted he would wait awhile.

"Sure enough a plainly dressed woman came along, evidently searching for something. With the pocketbook in his pocket, my husband asked her if she'd lost something. She said she had lost the money she was going to buy her children some winter clothes with. When she told him the correct amount in the purse, she received it with the remark, 'What a relief! I was so scared!'

"Soon afterwards my husband died and a couple of years later my eldest, at 14, went to work part-time in that drug store. So the talkative X told the story there of 'this girl's father, who didn't argue with me about things but did practice what he preached.' How could my children do differently?

Common Problem.

"My present husband was a friend of my first and he has ten children. He frequently says, 'We never have had any trouble with the children picking up change or anything that belonged to others or the neighbors but it is one of the commonest problems at school.' He teaches shop work and frequently has students who pilfer small things. Often it is difficult to catch the culprits, too, because they become so adept by the time they reach high school.

"But I think it is no mystery that his children do not do such things for everywhere people say, 'Oh, yes, I've known your husband all his life. He did a job for me,' and then they will likely tell me some little story about his good character when just a young man and add, 'He's brought up a fine family, too' But I'm sure his reputation has brought up the children more than his admonitions for children know."

The she adds, "Of course, mothers who co-operate, can build up the father's influence immeasurably." Clearly, she was a great part of the successful family. Besides, the example of those fathers must have been made fruitful in a family atmosphere of understanding and love—a great combination

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, July 20.

A swift and systematic grasp of current affairs, which may have some perplexing or curious phases, should result in very satisfactory and lucrative adjustments, along constructive and secure lines.

Tact, finesse as well as cleverness may be the best methods for undermining tricky or suspicious circumstances or of dragging undercover treacheries into the open, to be summarily dealt with.

Those whose birthday it is may turn a strange or treacherous state of affairs into lucrative, gratifying and worthwhile prospect for an alluring, intriguing and happy adventure.

Sudden and swift moves, finesse, tact and show of good will, should bring about sound denouement and set at rest suspicious traps or undercurrents.

A child born on this day will be particularly lively, keen, and sagacious at penetrating sly, crafty, and sinister situations, bringing treachery into the open.

Shall She Play 'Hard-to-Get' For Wandering Boyfriend

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

I am 17 years old, and very broken-hearted. I went steady with a fellow for three months. Everything was going fine until one of his ex-girl friends came back to town to live. Immediately he broke off with me to go back with this girl.

We are still good friends and have a lot of fun together. I would like to know how to get him back from this other girl, because he still says he likes me, but does not seem to do anything about it. Should I act nice to him, or "play hard to get," even though I would like to go back with him tomorrow?

"Green Eyes"

Instead of adopting an "either-or" policy, "Green Eyes," that is, either "acting nice" to him or "playing hard to get," I would suggest combining a little of both in your campaign. That is, be nice to him in a pleasant, companionable but not too eager way when the opportunity presents, but be a little hard to get, too, by having enough other interests so that you are sometimes "so sorry but all tied up" when he asks you to go out.

Don't let him get the idea for a minute that you're just sitting around waiting for him to call. Let him understand that you have plenty of other things to do, and places to go, besides being with him. And don't try to bluff this, either. Really have them. But don't give him the idea either—by acting upstage or giving him the cold shoulder—that you're angry or upset over the situation.

Just be yourself when you see him—and when you don't, too. It's much the best and most effective plan.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Not long ago the boy I have been going with since last September came home on liberty after being gone for two months. He had a five-day leave, and during that time he only took me out twice. After that I didn't see him, and I didn't hear from him for three weeks. Now he writes regularly, and says he still loves me and asks me to wait for him. I'd like to know what to do.

Contused.

I think you are the only one who can answer your own question satisfactorily. For how can anyone else tell how much you care for this boy, or whether or not he is worth waiting for? You don't give even a clue on either of these points, which I should think would be the determining factors in any decision, if you really have to make a decision right now, which I doubt.

If you feel that this boy is a worth-while person, and if he means a great deal to you, then I should think you would naturally want to wait and see if he, in turn, really cares for you. But maybe you don't care that much for him, and maybe you feel that he is not very dependable in his feelings, and so you might be wasting your time in taking him seriously. Only you can tell about this.

Don't you think, in any event, that you expect quite a lot of him? When a boy has only five days leave, he's got to crowd a lot into a short time, and it seems to me he did pretty well by you in taking you out twice. Why don't you give him a chance instead of trying to pin him down? He'll like you much better if you're not too possessive.

ASKS STATE TO USE PLANT AS BOYS' SCHOOL

Reams Proposes Purchase of Scioto Ordnance Property By State of Ohio.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Purchase of the administration area of the Scioto ordnance plant at Marion O for use as a boys industrial school 'as promptly as is consistent with good business' was recommended today to State Welfare Director Frazier Reams by a special investigating committee

Urging the Marion plant as a permanent facility the committee further recommended that the state begin plans for gradual erection of permanent buildings to replace frame structures now on the ordnance plant site

It is our opinion that the present facilities of the Boys Industrial school (Lancaster) are inadequate the committee declared asserting that statistics do not reflect the measure of need for additional facilities

This," the committee continued is true because it is informed that about 32 per cent of boys on parole from the institution fail and that releases from the school are effected often because of the necessity to make room for new commitments rather than discharging the boy because he is ready for discharge '

Director Reams said the Marion facilities if purchased by the state would be a training school and an adjunct to the present school at Lancaster He declined to say what type of youths would be quartered at Marion

The Scioto ordnance plant area which the committee recommended by enclosed by a fence originally was considered as the site of a medium security school There are no security provisions at Lancaster

State law provides for segregation facilities to keep apart older and more hardened youths from younger boys This, the committee pointed out was not properly taken care of at Lancaster because of 100 per cent overcrowding

In a typical cottage at the Boys Industrial school the committee reported we are informed the family life center is in the basement measuring 48 by 30 feet This area is occupied by 70 boys at times 80"

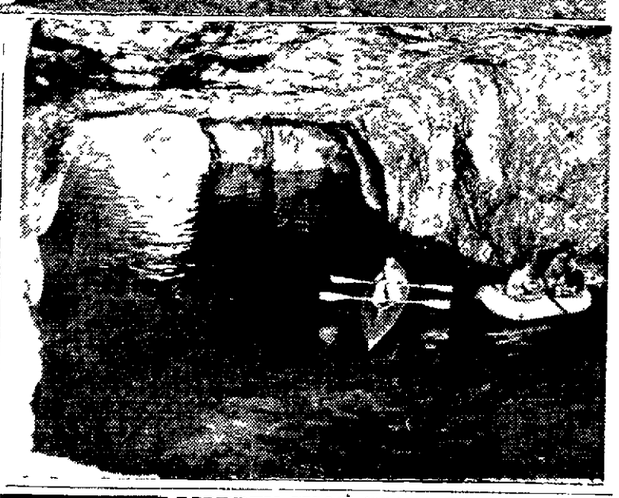
Replacement value of the Scioto plant administration area was listed by the report at $1 004 695 including $258 000 for the public utilities and roads $582 650 for 231 000 feet of floor space and $164 045 for 1 244 31 acres of agricultural land and farm buildings

The committee said its recommendation for quick action was prompted partly by a desire to prevent further rapid depreciation of the buildings

It also recommended that age be the principal factor in determining which youths should be shifted from Lancaster to Marion and that a family officer be called upon to supervise not more than 25 youths

Reams said he would pass the report on to the state post-war program commission and to Gov Frank J Lausche with the recommendation the governor prepare the material for the next session of the legislature

Hobbyist Explorers Seek A-Bomb Shelters



A recent war department request to the National Speleological Society to find 50 000 square feet of cavern space for factories shelters and storage, met with the enthusiastic approval of those persons who make a hobby of exploring caves The request followed President Trumans statement that the danger of an atomic bomb attack on the U S 'is real' A group of speleologists or spelunkers is shown above at a meeting in the Strickland Quarry Caverns near Portland Conn The gathering is called to order by Chairman F W Wilson Assisting are (right) Secretary Lydia Neubeck and Clay Perry the president The war department told the spelunkers that it prefers dry caves for its shelters and storage space but running water in the lower levels doesn't necessarily mean that upper sections are not available Exploring for dry areas in the Strickland Quarry at Portland Conn these members of the National Speleological Society use a kayak and a rubber liferaft to get around the underground waters
